World Court Protest Meeting

'CRADLE OF LIBERTY' TO BE SCENE OF FIGHT ON SATURDAY NIGHT

The Boston patriots of 1925 are rising.

The Minute Men of 1925 will assemble on the green next Saturday night in the first move to repel the onslaught against America's freedom.

And include the Minute Women!

They, too, will take part in a mammoth mass meeting to be held in Faneuil Hall, where Liberty first was nurtured and where the fight will begin for the retention of freedom.

If you are opposed to entry of the United States into the World Court, which is nothing but the camouflaged back door of the League of Nations;

If you are opposed to any intriguing, sinister, disguised, selfish and menacing alliance or affiliation with scheming foreign powers;

If you believe in keeping your country free and untrammeled, but friendly and sympathetic to all nations, you are cordially invited to attend the big protest meeting next Saturday night in Faneuil Hall.

Everybody is welcome.

A few days ago, Congressman George Holden Tinkham, old-line Republican and life-long friend of President Coolidge, asked:

"Is there no way that can be de

GIRL SLIPS, LEG IS CUT OFF

Haverhill, Dec. 28.—Mary Conlon, a student at Lowell Normal School, lost her right leg when she slipped and fell beneath a train at Bradford station of the Boston & Maine Railroad here today.

The train was in motion as the girl attempted to board the last car. The last truck passed over her foot.

Her life was saved by the prompt action of James Mullins, a railroad employe, who employed a knife and a handkerchief to improvise a tourniquet and stop the flow of blood. The girl was taken to the Hale Hospital where the leg was amputated below the knee. She lives at No. 9 Williams street, this city.

PERSHING COMING BACK; HEALTH BREAKS DOWN

Washington, Dec. 28 (A.P.).—Because of failing health, General John J. Pershing is expected to return here within the next month from Arica, Chile, where he is representing President Coolidge in the Chilean-Peruvian arbitration over Tacna-Arica. His physician has recommended that he start home not later than January 15.

The general of late has been affected by a marked increase in blood pressure, in addition to complications resulting from infected teeth. He is in his 66th year.

Although Washington officials declined to make any announcement regarding General Pershing's return to the United States, there were evidences that his departure from South America would in no sense be a diplomatic retreat from an international situation which has become embarrassing.

TAUNTON HEROINE, 9, FALLS INTO FLAMES AFTER RESCUING 3

A nine-year-old girl and her baby brother lost their lives in one of the series of fires that today followed the cold wave. The girl perished after rescuing her grandmother and her brother and sister in a blaze in Taunton.

Mary Costa, the young heroine, at first escaped the flames, then dashed into the burning building to save Mrs. Manuel Soares, her grandmother, and two smaller children.

She dragged the children to safety and then returned for her grandmother. She pushed the aged woman through a window and then, utterly exhausted, sank back into the roaring furnace.

Meanwhile her baby brother Frank, whom she evidently believed had been rescued, was trapped in an-

TRAIN HITS SKIDDING AUTO, 1 DEAD, 1 DYING

One man was killed, another was fatally injured and two companions narrowly escaped death today when a Boston to Hyannis train crashed into an automobile at Bridgewater.

Adon Bernardino was killed. Charles Stevis had both legs cut off and is dying at Moore Hospital in Brockton. James Morris and Joseph Whatnough leaped from the automobile and escaped injury. All the men were of Pawtucket, R. I.

The gates at the railroad crossing near the Bridgewater station went down for the express as the automobile approached on Broad street, heading east.

The driver, Morris, unable to stop the machine quickly enough, swerved sharply to the right to avoid breaking through the gates, but the tires skidded on the icy road and the automobile slid sideways on the tracks directly in front of the express.

The automobile slid across the end of the station platform a few yards from where a score of persons were waiting for the train. It was tossed from the tracks.

The men were riding from Pawtucket to their work at a factory under construction in North Abington.

Bernardino leaves a widow and four children. Stevens has a wife and one child.

COLD KILLS 3 IN HUB; MERCURY IS CLIMBING

Fierce Cold gathered together its forces of death and destruction in the icy Northwest and swept down upon the United States, attacking the stricken section from the Atlantic to the Rockies and as far South as Alabama, and leaving as a Christmas aftermath, a wake of misery.

The death list directly attributable to cold reached twenty-eight with the late reports that were sent in from different parts of the country.

NO BOOST IN COAL PRICE, SAYS PINCHOT

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 28 (A.P.).—Governor Pinchot in a statement today expressed gratification at the resumption of negotiations between the anthracite operators and miners and declared the negotiations should produce a settlement not only just to the operators and miners, but one which will give the public coal without an increased price.

Tomorrow in New York City, the operators and miners resume negotiations at the point where they broke off last August and it is generally believed that this will bring about an amicable understanding, upon which work can be resumed.

New York, Dec. 28 (I.N.S.).—Settlement this week of the strike of 158,000 anthracite coal miners was pre-

POLAR BLASTS TAKE HEAVY TOLL IN LIVES

spots, as thirteen died of cold and exposure in the Illinois city.

Three are dead in Boston, with others near death in various hospitals.

In New York three are dead, with scores near the point of death.

Kentucky also reported three dead.

Providence has one death victim, as has Philadelphia.

Four deaths were reported in Baltimore, Md.

The horror of the cold wave was emphasized by the hard coal strike and the fires that followed cost millions in property damage. Missions and municipal lodging houses in cities all over the country were swamped by unfortunates seeking heat and shelter.

From the local forecaster today came the welcome announcement that the backbone of the wave had been broken at 9 o'clock when the mercury took an upward leap of five degrees, from sixteen above zero to twenty-one. At 10 o'clock there came another rise of one degree. The forecast for tonight is fair and cold, but by no means as cold as has been the case.

MERCURY BELOW ZERO.

A series of fires followed the incursion of cold and hundreds of families were made homeless and compelled to seek shelter from neighbors and friends.

Hospitals were crowded with other sufferers from cold and exposure, many of them in so serious a condition that the death list is sure to be much greater before the icy blast has abated its frenzy.

Temperatures of zero and below were in order all over the country.

Weather forecasters hold out no hope of surcease until nightfall.

Chicago appeared to be the particular target for the frigid attack, for the forces of cold gathered additional fury as they swept downward across the Great Lakes.

Chicago's list of death included four men who were actually frozen to death in the streets, while thousands passed, and the fire damage reached an enormous sum as 500 alarms were sounded.

From Providence comes the story of tragedy of May Coughlin, whose body was found today in her ice-cold tenement at No. 5 San Souci street. There was no semblance of fire in the stove.

In Philadelphia an aged lamplighter, one of the last of an all but forgotten trade, collapsed from the cold as he made his rounds, and was dead before he reached the hospital.

Edwin C. Dolliver, seventy-nine-year-old wholesale grocer, was Boston's first victim of the cold. He died in a taxicab of a heart attack brought on, according to hospital physicians, by the extreme cold.

Patrick McSweeney, sixtyfive years old, died of cold and exposure at the Worcester Hospital.

FOUND FROZEN IN BARN.

At Haymarket Relief Station physicians are fighting valiantly for the life of Patrick Deery, eighty-five-year-old man, found in a West End stable.

Charles Duval of Quincy was the third local man to lose his life as the result of the cold. The intense cold had caused him to build a fire in his room at No. 102 Chubbuck street, Quincy, and he was suffocated.

Even Washington felt the effects of the cold wave and the Potomac is frozen today.

From Atlanta, Ga., came word that zero weather and even subzero temperatures were felt in some places in the South. Three deaths by cold were reported from Kentucky.

The highest temperatures recorded were in Florida where Jacksonville registered 35 degrees and Miami, at the tip end of the peninsula, reported 51 degrees.

Coldest was Louisville with four below. New Orleans registered 30 degrees and Atlanta 10.

Real Winter hit Cincinnati, O., a stunning blow, sending the mercury down to almost five degrees below zero. It was indirectly responsible for one death.

In Jacksonville, Fla., A. J. Mitchell, United States meteorologist, said temperatures were low enough to damage fruit and advised that all fruit on trees be picked today.

A twelve-day blizzard in Montana, during which the thermometer ranged from 20 to 50 degrees below zero, ended today when the mercury started climbing from the zero mark.

vised in Boston and in Massachusetts to demonstrate, both to New England and to the country what we all know in Washington is strong public opinion in relation to a most vital American issue, the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations by way of the League Court?"

The huge mass meeting set for next Saturday night is the answer by Boston and Massachusetts patriots, descendants of the men of Lexington and of Bunker Hill.

A meeting of the public, by the public, for the public, will be the mass meeting be—the opening shot to be heard, not only 'round the world, but in its court.

Speakers in brilliant array will be on the platform to explain in detail what the people denounce as an insidious trap to ensnare America into an alliance with foreign powers that means only the clipping of freedom's wings

The explanation will be for the benefit of those in attendance who thus far have not realized the black void that yawns beyond the brink on which the nation now teeters.

Most of those present will be there with full understanding, for it is the strong local demand on the part of citizens who follow world affairs and who have scented the intrigue, that has brought about the meeting of protest against America's entrance into the World Court.

Not alone will it be a men's meeting. Women will take a large part in the protest and the committee in charge of the meeting includes a number of women—such women as Mrs. Curtis Guild, widow of the former Governor; Mrs Clarence R. Edwards, wife of General Edwards, "Daddy" of the YD; Mrs. George R. Fearing, society leader and Hub civic worker; Mrs. Edward L. Logan, wife of General Logan, commander of the 26th Division, M. N. G., and Mrs. Thomas F. Murphy, wife of Colonel Murphy, member of General Logan's staff.

Congressman Tinkham, in warning against entrance into the World Court, charged, in the connection, that "propaganda from unpatriotic sources, international finance and the occult influence of alien interests has spread a menacing net over the United States in relation to this issue."

Former Representative Walter R. Meins of Roxbury, said:

"This scheme for adherence to the League of Nation's Court is but an insidious attempt to accomplish indirectly what the American people refuse to permit to be accomplished directly."

By the Rev. Rolany D. Sawyer of Ware, member of the State Legislature for a dozen years, it was declared:

"The issue is too big, too vital for anything to be allowed to keep us silent. To make sure there be no doubt as to where Massachusetts stands, it is well that a great meeting be held in Boston and that similar meetings be held throughout the State."

And Judge Charles M. Bruce, Republican and noted jurist of Malden one of the latest to add his protest to those of the others, said:

"I am a firm believer in the doctrine of no foreign entanglements. The League of Nations, in my opinion, is a failure in its pretentions and was well repudiated by this country. Not even remotely would I enter a combination, the dominant thought of which is greed of possession."

HANDS UP! JACK FROST HAS GOT HER SCARED!

With the mercury down around zero, pretty Peggy Lord isn't taking chances on her ears. You don't have to ask if its cold enough for her. She'd simply say B-r-r-r!

'Lost Republic's' Last Survivor Dead at 98

River Falls, Wis., Dec. 28 (A.P.).—Charles D. Parker, 98, last survivor of the "Lost Republic of Indian Stream," and former Lieutenant-Governor of Wisconsin, is dead here.

Born in 1827, he took part in the establishment by his father in the Indian Stream country of New Hampshire, of the "Indian Stream Republic," known as the "Lost Republic."

The Elder Parker, the only "president" of the republic, managed to hold the land in the face of armed attacks from Canada. After his father's death the son was largely instrumental in having the land admitted to the United States.

FOUR HURT BY WARSHIP BLAST AT NAVY YARD

Destroyer officer (name not announced.)

The force of the explosion was proved when one of the pieces of steel hurtled more than 1,000 feet through the air and struck the officer of the deck on a destroyer far astern of the Florida.

The men of the Navy Yard consider it miraculous that more were not injured, as under ordinary conditions there would have been a score or more men working in the danger zone.

The fifty-gallon tank was of steel and a rain of steel, like shrapnel fell upon all corners of the yard after the explosion.

Fortunately but few workers were in the danger zone when the blast shook the ship. Olsen was the most seriously injured and he will be transferred from the Navy Yard dispensary to hospital. The other men were treated at the dispensary. Eaton lost two fingers of his right hand. Manty was badly burned and struck on the head by the flying steel, while the drums of Olsen's ears were shattered, and he, too, was struck by the flying steel.

The Florida had but a skeleton crew on board as she is being repaired and converted into an oil burner.

The accident occurred abaft the bridge, where the gas tank was standing.

dicted today, on the eve of the joint conference of operators and miners.

Union leaders and representatives of the operators will face each other across the conference table in this city tomorrow, hostile at the start.

But, observers predict after the first flurry of resentment and the usual clash of words, the conferees will get down to business and before the week is ended reach an agreement which will send the men, who have been on strike since September 1, "back to the mines."

Pressure to end the most calamitous suspension in the history of anthracite coal mining has been growing hourly. This pressure has come largely from the anthracite coal region of Pennsylvania, hard hit in a business way by the strike, and has been brought to bear upon operators as well as union leaders.

The high lights of the proposals to be made by both sides tomorrow are expected to be as follows:

The operators will demand immediate resumption of mining pending the negotation of a new contract.

They will insist on arbitration of all points in dispute not settled by joint negotiations.

They will reject the peace plan made by Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania as "impractical."

They will fight for a five-year agreement with the provision for an annual readjustment of wages and working conditions in the light of changing economic conditions.

The miners will ask the operators to consider the Pinchot plan as a basis for negotiations.

The miners will express resentment over the publicity campaign of the operators to induce the miners to go back to work.

They will demand continuance of the "check-off" system by which miners' dues to the union are automatically deducted from their pay.

The miners will accept a long contract, but insist on a scale of fixed wages.

COLLAPSES ON STAND AT WILL TRIAL

Another Tells of the Visits of "Mrs. X," Society Cocktail Expert, to Home

A startling story of John A. Barbour's being knocked unconscious by his wife, the collapse of the witness who testified to the knock-out, and the introduction of a mysterious "Mrs. X," Brookline society leader, who was an expert at mixing cocktails, all featured the fight over the million dollar will of the late Brookline manufacturer, now being made in Norfolk Probate Court.

Mrs. Martha Locke, now the wife of a bond salesman but formerly employed as maid by Mrs. Barbour told the story of the knockout.

"One night in the Beacon street house, I heard a crash," she testified. "I ran down to Mr. Barbour's sitting room from which the crash had come, and I saw Mr. Barbour, in his night clothing, unconscious on the floor.

"The room was in great disorder, things were thrown all about. I saw a high-heeled French slipper near Mr. Barbour's head. Mrs. Barbour was bent over her husband and she was sobbing: 'Oh, God, I didn't realize I was going too far. I didn't mean to kill you.'

MAID COLLAPSES.

"I carried Mr. Barbour to the bathrom and brought him to consciousness by rubbing his head with water."

The witness told of other exhibitions of temper by Mrs. Barbour, of how on one occasion Mrs. Barbour had picked up her Pomeranian "Tito" by the scruff of the neck and thrown him across the room because her husband had said something that displeased her.

The former maid collapsed on the witness stand soon after she had given her story. She had hardly begun to answer the questions put her in cross-examination when, asked if she, too, was not subject to fits of temper, she put her hand to her head said "My heart troubles me," and fainted.

She was revived and allowed to go home.

HAD DOG NURSERY.

The next witness to be called was Mrs. Rose Garfield.

She was formerly a companion to Mrs. Barbour and she told of visits made to the Barbour Beaconstreet home by a Brookline society leader, designated by agreement of counsel only as "Mrs. X," who was an expert at mixing cocktails.

The witness told of frequent visits of "Mrs. X" and the cocktail parties. She also told of Mrs. Barbour's outbursts of temper, and described her "dog nursery" in detail.

Mrs. Barbour had three pomeranians, she said. Two slept in a regulation baby's bassinet, beautifully decorated with ribbons, pillows and all the fixings. The third dog had a basket-cradle for his home, likewise decorated.

TWO PROBES OF GIRL'S DEATH IN TUNNEL

Two investigations were being pushed today into the mysterious death of Mary K. Duffy, eighteen-year-old domestic whose mangled body was found in the pit of the State Street Tunnel of the Elevated.

The girl's body was found two hours after she had left the home of Kirk Boot, No. 184 Salisbury road, Brookline, where she was employed. She was on her way to church in the West End.

The Elevated is conducting one investigation; Medical Examiner Magrath the other.

Relative of the dead girl, according to officials, are satisfied that she met her death in an accidental manner. The body is at the home of her cousin, James F. O'Malley, No. 25 Allette street, Dorchester. He identified the body.

Motorman Duncan R. Cameron, No. 206 Metropolitan avenue, Roslindale, and Guard William J. O'Hara, No. 131 Cedar street, Roslindale, crew of the train that passed the pit just before the body was found, were called to the inquest.

SLIGHT LOSS BY BLAZE IN ST. JAMES THEATRE

Fire threatened the St. James Keith-Albee Theatre on Huntington avenue before opening time today when a blaze was discovered near the electric switchboard in the basement. Damage was slight. The cause was undetermined.

Killed as He Makes a Dash for Liberty

Palmer, Dec. 28 (I.N.S.).—Charles King, who escaped from the State Hospital at Monson today, accidentally stepped in front of a Boston & Albany Railroad freight train and was killed.

COL. COOLIDGE LOSES USE OF RIGHT LEG

Plymouth, Vt., Dec. 28 (A.P.).—Colonel John C. Coolidge, father of the President, was in bed today because he had lost the use of his right leg, due to faulty circulation.

Dr. Albert C. Cram of Bridgewater, his personal physician, said his patient's condition was not to be considered serious.

Dr. Cram visited the Coolidge home here twice yesterday and twice today. Shortly after noon today, in leaving for his home in Bridgewater, the physician said he had found the condition of Col. Coolidge "about the same."

Colonel Coolidge, who was seriously ill several weeks ago from a condition described as "heart block," has had several heart attacks recently, but none of them were of a serious nature, his physician said. The poor circulation from which he is now suffering, the physician said, was caused by the heart affection.

NEW MOVE IN LE BLANC CASE

Worcester, Dec. 28.—Refusing to respond to any more questioning by the police, Edward Rosseau, Leominster youth held in connection with the death of Lena LeBlanc of that city, asserted only his innocence when visited today in the county jail by State Detective Robert E. Molt.

The detective's visit to Rosseau followed a long conference at which Molt, District Attorney Baker and Assistant District Attorney Charles Rugg compared theories of the case and planned further action.

Molt declared that Rosseau now claims he has hired a lawyer, who forbids him to talk, but the youth refuses to name the lawyer.

"He says that his parents have hired a lawyer for him, despite that they have ignored him," Molt said. "However, we will try to settle this matter without questioning him any more."

The authorities have intimated that they are ready to seek a Grand Jury indictment with the evidence they now have. Rosseau is held on a charge of breaking and entering a Leominster dwelling.

'BABY MIND' MAY SAVE BOY FROM GALLOWS

Manchester, N. H., Dec. 28.—While twenty-two-year-old Louis Labombarde looked on, unconcerned, the first juror was selected today of the panel that will try Labombarde for the murder of the aged Gillis sisters, Helen and Georgianna, in their Hudson home.

The first juror selected was the second man questioned of the venire of ninety-eight. He is Frank Richardson of Amherst, and questions asked him by defence counsel indicate that an attempt will be made to show Labombarde as a man with a child's mentality.

Richardson's selection followed an unsuccessful attempt on the part of defence counsel to have the trial adjourned to Nashua for convenience of counsel in conferring with witnesses.

A father and his two sons—Former Mayor Jeremiah J. Doyle of Nashua and Robert and Paul Doyle—are Labombarde's defenders, and they intimated today that the defence will call not less than eight nor more than 25 witnesses.

JURY FIXES PENALTY.

Unlike procedure in Massachusetts, no venireman was asked today if he believed in the death penalty, for in New Hampshire it rests with the jury to recommend or not that a convicted murderer be given capital punishment.

The prospective jurors were asked, however, if they believed it possible for a man of twenty-two, to have the mentality of a boy.

As the trial opened today there came up a rumor that an unexpected development might terminate it suddenly.

Where the rumor originated none confessed to know, but it was strong in both camps and the understanding was that an agreement might be reached that would conclude the trial earlier than expected.

The prosecution has a confession alleged to have been made by Labombarde shortly after he was arrested, but this alleged confession he later repudiated.

IS DECLARED SANE.

Judge Oscar L. Young is on the bench, and the prosecution is represented by Attorney Jeremiah R. Waldron and County Solicitor George I. Haselton. Robert J. Doyle, one of the most prominent of New Hampshire's criminal attornies, is defending Labombarde. At least eighty witnesses are to be called, chief among whom will be Sheriff John T. O'Dowd.

Labombarde, since he was returned December 2 to the Hillsboro County Jail here from the State Hospital at Concord, where he was taken for observation and where he was declared to be sane, has mixed whole-heartedly in the activities at the jail and among the other prisoners, and shows no apparent realization that his life is in the balance.

His fourteen - year - old cousin, Charles Lefebvre of Hudson whom Labombarde is alleged to have implicated in his purported confession, will not face the jury at this time, but is scheduled to go on trial immediately after the conclusion of Labombarde's case.

BILL PROPOSES JAIL FOR 2D DRUNK CONVICTION

Two bills to strengthen the liquor laws of the State were filed today by Representative George L. Richards of Malden for the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League.

One called for both fine and imprisonment for violators convicted for the second time within six years. The other would compel prosecuting officers to ascertain whether there was a previous conviction, in preparing liquor cases, and to present such facts to the court before sentence is passed.

WOULD LIST ALL CHILDREN "EXEMPT" IF STUDENTS

The present income tax law which exempts the taxpayer for all children under eighteen years of age would be extended to other children, regardless of age, who are attending school, college or university, under the provisions of a bill filed at the State House today by Senator Hennessey of Dorchester.

"Let us encourage education by granting to the parents every assistance possible in the way of lightening his financial burden," Hennessey commented.

TWO CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE

other room, and he, too, was burned to death.

In Somerville, Andrew Scott all but lost his life in flames that swept through the block at Broadway and Hathorn street. He made two trips from the blazing building, carrying his wife and five little ones to safety.

Then the children, Olive, 11 Doris, 8; Andrew, Jr., 5, Warren, 3, and Nellie, three months, were in danger of being frozen as they stood in the icy street. So Scott made a third trip into the house for blankets for the little ones and barely escaped with his life.

Before he carried his own family to safety, Scott awakened Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bambury and their two children, on the floor above. Bambury was aided in his work of rescue by Patrolman Earl Elliott and Ladderman Charles Donovan. The fire started in a fruit store owned by D. Khouy and Company, on the street floor, and the damage was estimated at $7,000.

16 ESCAPE IN CHELSEA.

A mother with a three-months-old baby and two other families were driven into the biting cold when fire swept a three-story brick building at No. 95 Essex street, Chelsea.

Mrs. William King, who discovered the blaze on the first floor, quickly wrapped her infant in a blanket, gave the alarm and made her way through dense smoke into the street.

Morris Baker and seven children on the second floor and David Goodman with his two children on the third floor also fled.

Newburyport suffered one of the most disastrous fires in years, and some sixty people owe their lives to the fact that the proprietor of a fruit store went to his place of business early in fear that his fruit would freeze.

SAVES SIXTY FROM FLAMES.

He saw flames belching from the windows of the rooming house conducted by Nellie Reed in the block on High street fronting the High School and Court House.

The store proprietor, J. Potoroglous, ran through the building, awakening not only the lodgers but three other families. Then he ran to his own home in the adjoining block, carried his own five children to safety, and aroused three other families.

All escaped the flames though both blocks were destroyed.

Scores of guests were terror-stricken at the Hotel Arlington, South End, when flames burst out in the kitchen. The management by assuring the guests the fire was slight and well in hand quieted any panic. The firemen were compelled to fight the flames from the roof as they centred in the chimney and air shafts.

FOUR FIREMEN HURT.

In Chicopee ten families were driven from their homes while four firemen were injured in their fight against the flames. Three fires in the tenement district followed each other in quick succession.

At Providence, an entire Italian colony was menaced by flames and the shivering householders were compelled to watch the firemen fight the flames in their homes for four hours.

The biggest fires in the country were reported from Wheeling, W. Va., and Williston, N. D. In Wheeling the flames destroyed a business block with property damage estimated at $500,000, while in the North Dakota city a business district was wiped out with a loss of a quarter of a million.

HOLDS UP COURT TILL HE GETS HIS EATS

There is something to be said for [illegible], and the man that will say it is George W. Doherty of Cambridge—various degrees, veteran of long distance gastronomics—and a man not averse to bending a loving lip to the rim of a cup of cheer.

When it comes to eating, and [illegible] you well, let George do it.

There are days when George does not appear in Cambridge Court. These usually are days when he is rusticating at Bridgewater, involuntarily, it is true, but nevertheless cheerfully.

On an occasional day, George possibly might be somewhere en route between Bridgewater and Cambridge, but his court record says it is only occasional.

In the flipping of the calendar leaves, it came to be today that George again stood before justice in East Cambridge on his regular charge, drunkenness. Almost monotonously he was sentenced to the State Farm and was placed again in the pen.

This was at 9 o'clock and the minutes ticked off into hours while other cases were heard and disposed of.

Like a stoic, a Spartan or a graven image did George sit in the pen—and then a whistles of factories and the bell of the courthouse dinned out the noon hour.

In the middle of a case George stood up and pointed dramatically at the clock.

"It's noon," he announced.

"Sit down!" cried a court officer.

"Dinner time," insisted George.

"Sit down," the officer roared.

"I am hungry," said George. "I would eat."

And what could the court do but send George over to the jail for lunch.

You see, lunch is served exactly at 12 in the East Cambridge jail—and George knows.

Bar Horses From Noted Avenues in Washington

Washington, Dec. 28 (A.P.).—The horse has been barred from four of the capital's busiest thoroughfares, where, not so many years ago, he stepped with pride and ease in Fashion's daily parade.

Now, he may not enter Sixteenth street between H street and Colorado avenue, Massachusetts avenue, between Fourteenth and Twenty-second streets, New Hampshire avenue between Washington Circle and U street, nor Rhode Island avenue between Connecticutt avenue and North Capitol street.

MARY LANGDON TOO LEAKY TO SAVE

Two famous schooners of the New England coastwise trade met with disaster from fire and heavy seas in the midst of the cold spell, while two other schooners are overdue and unaccounted for while enroute from Boston to Norfolk, Va.

The two-master Mary Langdon is aground near East Chop lighthouse, Martha's Vineyard, with her captain forced to decline assistance from the Coast Guard Cutter Acushnet because of danger of sinking if towed to deep water. The vessel is leaking badly and in danger of pounding to pieces.

This schooner, which has carried New England cargoes for eighty years, was rescued by the Acushnet when in trouble off Stonehorse Ledge and was being towed to Woods Hole when she broke loose. Helpless in the heavy seas, she was cast on the rocks.

Thousands of persons in Portland, Me., watched the destruction by fire of the last six-masted schooner on the seas, the Edward J. Lawrence. This vessel was built eighteen years ago, at a cost of $150,000.

Fears for the safety of the four-masters Cora F. Cressy and Bright were expressed today.

400 BOY SCOUTS HEAR FULLER AT JAMBOREE

Hundreds of Boy Scouts gathered in Boston today for their three-day jamboree at Horticultural Hall. The exercises were opened with an address by Governor Fuller after the Scouts' Band of Marlboro had played the "Star Spangled Banner," and the 400 present stood at attention.

"Most of our young folks of today," said the Governor, "are going about without any responsibility. The Scout movement gives a great opportunity for boys to develop responsibility, for the impressions gained in boyhood last through young manhood and manhood.

A Victor Announcement

ON November second we announced the Orthophonic Victrola, a scientific sound-producing instrument so revolutionary in performance that the public of this country as well as eminent scientists and musicians marveled at the improvement.

Its acceptance by the public was instantaneous, and so great is the demand for our new product that even with our huge factories working overtime we have been able to supply our dealers with only a small portion of their immediate requirements.

We are rapidly increasing production and expect soon to have the situation in hand.

May we, therefore, in behalf of our dealers, ask your indulgence a little while longer.

EASTMAN, FOR PUBLIC RULE, HEADS I. C. C.

Government Ownership of the Railroads Nearer as Boston Man Takes New Post

Government ownership of railroads took a long step forward today when announcement came out of Washington that Joseph B. Eastman, former member of the Massachusetts Public Service Commission, will become chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission next Friday.

Appointed to the Federal Board by President Wilson, the Bay State man has waged a constant people's war against the majority of the board and has come out frequently in favor of government ownership of railroads.

He succeeds to the chair in the I. C. C. through virtue of the rotation rule under which the chairman is selected from the commission members.

ON BAY STATE BOARD.

Eastman, for four years, was a member of the Massachusetts Public Service Board, to which he was appointed by Governor David I. Walsh in 1914.

Since 1905 he had been secretary of the Public Franchise League and for some time was counsel for street railway unions in the Boston Elevated, Middlesex and Boston and Bay State Street Railway (now the Eastern Massachusetts) arbitration matters.

A minister's son, born in Katonah, N. Y., Eastman was graduated from Amherst College as president of the class of 1904, receiving a fellowship which allowed him to study social and political conditions in Boston's South End.

HELP CUT LIGHT PRICES.

The first important work he engaged in was an investigation for the Public Franchise League which led up to the reduction by the Edison Co. of its electricity rate from 15 to 10 cents.

The new I. C. C. chairman is a member of the Boston Athletic Association, Boston City Club and the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

BOSTON NOTABLES SAIL ON BELATED MAJESTIC

Mr. and Mrs. Eben S. Draper and Miss Draper, of the Back Bay, are among the 1,000 passengers in the White Star liner Majestic which left New York this afternoon for Cherbourg and Southampton. The big liner was held back for forty-eight hours that American passengers might spend Christmas at their homes and not be forced to rush for the pier. Others from Boston and New England aboard are: E. P. Brown, president of the United Shoe Machinery Company, T. P. Madden, vice-president of the Submarine Signal Company, Hammond V. Haynes, Miss Ann C. Crosby, Miss Helen G. Bailey, of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Stearns, of Hartford and Lawrence Schwab going to London to arrange for the St. James production of his successful New York play, "The Firebrand."

COSTA RICAN BELLE LONE PASSENGER ON SAN BRUNO

From out of the tropics into icy cold weather came Miss Dora Beachini, a Costa Rican society belle, in the United Fruit liner San Bruno today. Miss Beachini was the lone passenger in the big ship and it wasn't until they were off Nantucket that she had her first taste of real Arctic weather.

But depsite the blow and the cold, San Bruno was at her berth, Long Wharf, on time. Ice glistened against her white sides and superstructures as well as along her decks. Within her holds 26,000 bunches of bananas, 500 boxes of bananas, 400 sacks of cocoa beans and 152 crates of pineapples were safe from the wintry blasts. San Bruno sails Wednesday with a stop at Halifax to gather on additional cargo.

DEER ISLAND PRISONER STABBED IN RACE FEUD

A racial feud at Deer Island was revealed today when Guiseppi Miccichi was arraigned in East Boston district court charged with assaulting Michael Spikofsky with a pair of scissors. Both are prisoners in the House of Correction.

According to the authorities, Miccichi concealed a pair of scissors and jabbed his fellow-prisoner repeatedly with them as they were on their way to their cells for the night. The trouble arose over disparaging remarks made by Spikofsky against Miccichi's nationality. The case was continued.

STOP? WHY TRAIN DIDN'T HESITATE IN BOURNE!

The elimination, without public notice, of the morning train from Boston, which formerly stopped at Bourne at 9 a. m., was protested against by fifty residents of Bourne to the Public Utilities Commission today.

The petitioners declared that it is their understanding that the New Haven road intends to take off the Boston-bound train, now stopping at Bourne around 7 a. m.

Fear was expressed that the station "may be eventually abolished because of lack of patronage."

Rides 3 Days on 'L'

Because she was deserted and afraid in a big city, Bertha Furtado, 14-year-old runaway of New Bedford, rode back and forth on the "L" for three days. Finally she gave in from hunger.

RUNAWAY GIRL AWAITS FATHER

New Bedford, Dec. 28.—Weak from hunger, exposure and three-days' continuous riding in New York subways, Bertha Furtado, thirteen, a timid little runaway, waited today in New York in care of the Children's Society for the coming of her stepfather, Faustino Lopes.

Turned into the street, she says, by a man who kept her a virtual prisoner in New York, she sought the warmth of subways and there for three days she rode until picked up on the verge of collapse.

BATTLE FOR AN HOUR IN ROOM

A rag saturated with a burning liquid and pressed over his mouth and nose, awakened George Nix early today at a rooming house at No. 287 Shawmut avenue, and he grappled with a man bending over him. The fight lasted nearly an hour.

When Nix broke away he fled in scant attire to East Dedham street police station and told his story. Police later arrested Charles Costello at the rooming house on a charge of attempted robbery. He was held for the Grand Jury.

Nix told police he had come to Boston to spend Christmas and had met Costello, who purported to be the proprietor of the Shawmut avenue rooming house. Nix took lodgings with him and remained there Saturday and Sunday.

Police say that Costello is only a roomer.

TWO THEATRE SAFES LOOTED

Using "can openers," robbers looted safes of two theatres over the week-end and secured $500.

At the State Theatre on Massachusetts avenue they ripped off the combination of the billiard room safe and secured about $300. They entered through the Astor street door.

In Chelsea the thugs opened the safe of the Broadway Theatre and secured $200.

VAN HUSEN WANTS HIS TAX ABATED $120,594

Abatement of $120,594.33 in State income taxes is sought by John M. Van Husen of Jamaica Plain in a petition filed today in Suffolk Superior Court. The petition names Henry F. Long, State Commissioner of Corporations and Taxation, as respondent. Van Husen, who is one of the inventors of the semi-soft collar, claims he paid a tax of $106,744.76 on his 1922 income under protest and that this amount, plus interest at 6 per cent. since October, 1923, is due him. He asserts he was wrongfully taxed on a tranaction in which he received stock of $3,600,000 in Van Husen Products, Inc., in exchange for patents and other rights.

"WASH DAY ONLY THIEF" CAUGHT IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, Dec. 28 (A.P.).—The "wash day thief," wanted for weeks by the Providence police in connection with more than a score of house breaks in residential sections, was arrested today. In his possession was found a marriage license, issued recently to William McDonald in Chicago, and articles stolen from a dozen Providence homes.

According to the police, McDonald would "spot" a house where a woman was hanging out clothes in the backyard, go in and rob it.

WOLLASTON WOMAN HURT IN 25-FOOT AUTO PLUNGE

Passersby removed her from the wreck of the car.

STUDENTS FORD'S GUESTS IN SQUARE DANCES

Malden high school students will forsake the Charleston and all the rest of the modern snappy dances when Benjamin F. Lovett, Henry Ford's personal dancing instructor, comes to Malden Wednesday to coach them in the art of old-fashioned square dancing.

Lovett arrived today at Wayside Inn, Sudbury, a landmark acquired by Mr. Ford some time ago. Lovett will remain there for an indefinite rest.

Malden high school students will be guests of Mr. Ford at Wayside Inn on January 2[illegible] at an old-fashioned square dance. They invited Lovett to teach them the old-fashioned dances.

"RUM QUEEN'S" AUTO LICENSE IS CANCELLED

Montpelier, Vt., Dec. 28 (A.P.).—Mrs. Hilda Stone of Halifax who raises turkeys when she is not rum running, according to her recent statement, was notified today by Secretary of State Aaron H. Grout that her right to drive an automobile in Vermont has been cancelled because of alleged excessive efforts in the liquor traffic.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Younger Members of Hub Society Making Merry Here, There and Everywhere

SO FAR AS FASHIONDOM'S SET IS CONcerned it appears to be holiday-making here, there and everywhere, particularly in the social arenas of Gotham, Providence and Baltimore. Gotham debutante functions carry a bit of feminine Bostonese what with the influx of several ultra smart girls of the local environment.

A BAKER'S DOZEN of Boston's handsomest and chic buds and year-out girls have packed new and adorable creations into trunks and boxes to flit to the Big City. Miss Mabel Bayard Thayer is there as house guest of the Goodhue Livingstons in the East Sixties.

MISS CORNELIA CLARK with her two brothers, Forrester A. Clark and J. Dudley Clark, Jr., is staying for the holiday week with Miss Jane Brady, one of the fifteen New York girls who came over for Miss Clark's brilliant coming out ball at the Copley Plaza.

NATURALLY THE COMING OUT ball given by Mr. and Mrs. William Woodward, of New York and Newport, for their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Woodward, interests a Boston contingent, Mrs. Woodward being one of the beautiful "Cryder triplets" of which Mrs. F. Lothrop of Boston is another.

A BALL EACH NIGHT is the frivolous fare calling Boston girls to Gotham. One of the largest will be the supper dance the John T. Pratts give December 30 for Miss Sally Pratt at the Ritz-Carlton.

MISS PRATT IS A SISTER of the John T. Pratt, Jr., who last August at Islesboro, Maine, with brilliant nuptial eclat, married Miss Mary Christy Tiffany. Mrs. Malcolm Whelen Greenough (Kathleen Rotch) just back from honeymooning in Europe, Miss Harriet Boyden and Miss Helen Mossey were bridal attendants then.

ANOTHER MANHATTAN hostess helping to blaze a gloriously festive holiday trail is Mrs. James Byrne, who gives a large house dance for Miss Beatrice L. Byrne, one of the younger daughters. Miss Sheila Byrne, eldest of the trio, is frequently a Boston guest, having scores of friends in the young set here.

PROBABLY NOTHING on the Gotham calendar so intrigues Bostonians as Grafton Winthrop Minot's dinner dance at Pierre's for Miss Honora Winthrop Mason, his cousin, whom Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grafton Minot introduced by way of a ball at the Somerset.

BOSTON'S TALENTED society dancer, Miss Bettine Braggiotti, also takes the Gotham holiday trail. She stays with the [illegible], later to be joined by Miss Francesca Braggiotti who was with her sister Maria at [illegible] for Christmas. They'll be guests of Miss Rosamond Pinchot for New Year.

THE PINCHOTS ARE [illegible] New Year's [illegible] Boston guests on New Year's Eve. On January [illegible] Mrs. Lewis Fox [illegible] street entertain [illegible] ball of gorgeous Arabian Nights [illegible] in honor of their daughter Antoinette and the Boston girls do an interpretive dance.

JUST BEFORE the costume ball Miss Rosamond Pinchot gives a dinner at the Colony Club for Miss Priscell [illegible] with [illegible] the Misses [illegible] board. Miss [illegible] is a recruit from [illegible] the stage.

THEIR ART as [illegible] is dancing while her [illegible] for acting. As a principal in the stupendous spectacle "The Miracle," she received [illegible] and critic [illegible].

IN BALTIMORE Mr. [illegible] Cottman [illegible] erstwhile [illegible] particular star of the Young Matron Set, is a hostess for the second supper dance, to be a New Year's Night affair at the Hotel Belvedere given by the Supper Club.

THE COTTMANS MOVE [illegible] by within that smart Baltimorean circle, which [illegible] the Winter season with innumerable chic functions, which rides to hounds during the season and maintains large country establishments whose hospitality is a byword.

MISS HELEN BENNETT [illegible] riage who and Mrs. Cottman are sisters [illegible] Boston, was [illegible] historic St. Thomas [illegible] in the Green Spring Valley of Maryland with an awe-inspiring [illegible] tivity truly Cottmanesque in loveliness and gayety.

A BOSTON CONTINGENT is bidden to two Providence holiday parties arranged in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Grosvenor. Mrs. Grosvenor was Miss Anita Strawbridge, daughter of the Robert Strawbridges of "Meadow Lodge," Bryn Mawr.

RECENTLY THEY HAVE made their home in Cambridge. The Grosvenor kith and kin is a notable Providence and New York connection, and holiday festivities for the young people will be carried off with much dash and brilliance, as is the Providence way.

UNITED STATES Senator Peter Goelet Gerry and Mrs. Gerry (Edith Dresser Vanderbilt) are in Providence from Washington as Christmastide guests of Mrs. Gerry's sister, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, who entertained at dinner in their honor. The Gerry-Vanderbilt romance is one of the latest of [illegible] in many circles.

THE ABSENCE from Newport of Mrs. Paul Fitz Simons brought sadness to many lowly souls there, in those circles wherein Mrs. Fitz Simons was wont to play the Lady Bountiful with a kindly and lavish hand.

EACH CHRISTMASTIDE it was her custom to fill a motor with all sorts of gifts, useful and frivolous, and drive about town to meet many friends in every walk of life and give them Xmas remembrances. This season Mrs. Fitz Simons is not in Newport.

WONDER DOG IN FILM THRILLER

"With [illegible] and her [illegible] Rin-Tin-Tin, canine [illegible] extraordinary, saves the day for his master and [illegible] in his latest [illegible] of the Wild" at the Fenway.

The film [illegible] the struggle [illegible] the adventures of this strong and [illegible] intelligent [illegible] is but the [illegible] of them, for as a [illegible] The [illegible] of humans [illegible] Rin-Tin-Tin is the [illegible] with [illegible] whether [illegible] the desert, long [illegible] down [illegible] "mushing" in the [illegible].

The other part of the Fenway's double bill, "Three Faces East," is a better picture in every respect. It is a good mystery story of the war, is well directed by Rupert Julian and has an excellent cast in Jetta Goudal, Robert Ames, Henry B. Walthall and Clive Brook, but the dog story has the greater appeal to the audience.

She is survived by her son, a daughter, Mrs. Josephine Kinney of South Boston, and eleven grandchildren.

THE THEATRE Here and There

"Sweetheart Time" Well Fed Angels DiPesa, Actor Stage Mother

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

THOUGH laboring under the manifold burdens that invariably assail a new production—too much material and too little time to exploit it—"Sweetheart Time" has brought many genuine items of interest to the Majestic. They are woven into a fabric that should, when the refitting is completed, take a firm hold on the man who wants his drama with splashes of love, lingerie and melody.

Marion Saki

GIRLS in droves cluster about the stage and enliven the scene. They do even more, for they form a part of the story and provide intervals of comic relief to [illegible] hard working principals. The narrative in musical comedy is generally an inconsequential matter — just something upon which to pin [illegible] songs, ensembles and spectacles. Here, however, you discover the diminutive Eddie Buzzell carrying a sustained story—a bit weird and illogical at times, but all giving evidence of being a first-class plot. He frisks through scenes in the abundant manner of chattering, smart comedians—flip, but funny.

And Buzzell is given support of breadth and color. Mary Milburn is the fluffy girl with inviting eyes and lips; Marion Saki, a graceful young woman, dances with fine skill; Fred Leslie drawls himself through the evening as a dumb and penniless Englishman; Harry Kelly, deep of voice and deeper in comedy, does his stuff in a way entirely his own. To these may be added Al Sexton, Marie Nordstrom and the nimble-toed Rita del Marga; a formidable cast, completely surrounded by a chorus of Winter Garden dimensions and Ziegfeld pulchritude.

"Sweetheart Time is an evening's fare in good entertainment—a little of something for every taste. It is well set up scenically, gives everything that could be desired in costuming and is completely surrounded by girls.

ABOUT ANGELS.

Betty Bronson

OUT of the press department of the Metropolitan Theatre comes the query: "Did you ever see an angel with large hips?" Personally we have never met a regular angel — one carrying a union card and all that. The point is, it appears, that Betty Bronson demanded six trumpet blowing angels for a scene in Barrie's "A Kiss for Cinderella" and when Director Herbert Brenon of the Famous-Players workshop glanced over the candidates he discovered that every last one of them had been too well fed for the job. Work on the picture was delayed until the casting director could summon more candidates. While this was going on, Betty stood demurely by and waited. "Why do you have to get blonde angels?" she asked Mr. Brennon. "I dunno," he replied with a sigh, "unless there are fewer of them. A director always must do things in the most difficult way."

RATTLING THE SKELETON—Joe Di Pesa, professional booster for Mr. Clive's Copley Players, started in life as an actor. In 1901 he was one of the brothers in "Brother Against Brother" at the Chelsea Opera House. At the earnest request of the management he was persuaded to accept a job on a Boston newspaper and give up acting.

STAGE MOTHER.

Mabel Burt

MOTHERS will be mothers—on the stage and off. What Mary Carr is on the screen, Mabel Burt almost duplicates in the spoken drama. And she has been the mother of many a hero—and also a few who were not — during the last twenty-five years. When Thomas B. Lothian last week celebrated his silver anniversary as manager of the Colonial, he recalled that at the opening of the theatre on December 20th, 1900, Mabel Burt played the mother of Ben Hur; now, 25 years later, Miss Burt is mothering E. H. Sothern in "Accused," at the Wilbur. And she makes a very tidy job of it.

Turn Christmas money into things to keep

Your Christmas money should buy New Year's presents for yourself—perhaps one big thing you have wanted a long time, or two or three luxuries that you would never buy for yourself.

Christmas money should be spent for things to keep, that you may enjoy them for a long time and enjoy the thoughtfulness of the giver of your Christmas gold every time you use or wear them.

Our Antique Department has many interesting pieces of furniture, china, silver, and glass that would give added charm to your home by bringing you a masterpiece of a bygone craftsman.

Our Silver Department has many lovely examples of the silversmith's art. Each piece, large or small, is perfect in design and workmanship. Flat ware to match your pattern of silver, or a tea or coffee service, will give you lasting pleasure.

A clock in every room is the delight of many households. A new lamp enhances its surroundings. Place plates are always useful and attractive.

Then, too, we can show you many personal things that you would treasure. Won't you come in?

MRS. THOMPSON DIVORCED FROM MILL MAGNATE

Fitchburg Wife Wins Substantial Cash Award After Bitter Fight

Fitchburg, Dec. 28.—Mrs. Lena Thompson was granted a divorce decree nisi in Worcester Probate Court today from her elderly husband, John S. Thompson, wealthy cotton manufacturer and president of the New England Curtain Company, on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

Charges of intoxication and neglect to provide for Mrs. Thompson were not sustained. The case was bitterly contested. Thompson must pay his former wife $100 a week until the decree becomes absolute. He must then pay her the sum of $3,000 and give a $3,000 promissory not for three years and must pay $1,000 each year toward the note.

The court further ordered Thompson to create a trust fund of $15,000, the income of which will go to Mrs. Thompson, and he must release all claims to a large estate in Summer street. Mrs. Thompson was awarded $300 counsel fees.

Poet Lindsay Is Made Teasick by Women's Clubs

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 28 (A.P.)—Nicholas Vachel Lindsay, poet, returning home today after a tour of the West, declared he had sworn off going to women's clubs. "I prefer hostesses who do their own work and who also read," he said.

"Almost any college professor's wife is this sort, but the women's clubs hate such people with a deadly hatred. They prefer to thrust me among hostesses where there is much tea and a smothering of servants."

THOUSANDS ARE DELAYED BY 'L' TIEUPS

Thousands of persons bound for work today were forced to wait shivering, on street corners or huddled in doorways when lines leading into the city from Revere, Chelsea, Mattapan, Dorchester and Roxbury were tied up.

Passengers on stalled cars in Roxbury and Chelsea were given the choice of a long delay or a walk in the bitter cold to the next nearest car line.

A five-ton coal truck broke down on the inbound track on Chelsea bridge when its left rear wheel snapped off. The accident occurred in the mist of the rush hour traffic and automobiles and trolley cars were stalled in a line halfway back to Chelsea square.

The road was finally cleared for automobiles after a twenty-minute delay, but the truck could not be moved until its load of coal was taken off, and so trolley cars were rerouted back to Chelsea and then into Maverick square, East Boston.

Passengers who remained on the cars rather than walk half a mile or more into City square were delayed more than an hour, while for about the same length of time there was no street car traffic out of Revere.

Hundreds of "L" patrons waited for cars when a two-car train broke down at Blue Hill avenue and Seaver street, Roxbury. The train was stalled by a frozen air-brake.

This tie-up blocked the lines leading into both Egleston square and Dudley street transfer stations from Mattapan and parts of Dorchester and Roxbury. Many passengers in the stalled cars walked from points on Blue Hill avenue to Grove Hall to take cars on other lines.

Outbound traffic was also affected. The train that broke down was inbound from Mattapan to Egleston square. An emergency repair crew repaired the trouble and it was able to proceed under its own power to Egleston square, where it was taken out of service.

JURY TAMPERER'S PLEA FAILS; MUST GO TO JAIL

In spite of an eloquent plea for leniency, Antonio Gentile, North End baker, was given until Thursday to put his business affairs in shape before beginning a jail sentence for contempt of court. He was charged with soliciting a juror.

Gentile, speaking through an interpreter, told Judge Weed he was sorry and admitted he deserved a reprimand for speaking to the juror, George A. Dupont, during the suit of [illegible] W. Choate against Marcellina Gentile, wife of Antonio.

He said his business would be destroyed if he were sent to jail, and his seven sons, who needed his guidance, would suffer. Judge Weed said he would be derelict in his duty if he did not sentence Gentile.

AUTO SKIDS ON PIER; WORKER BADLY HURT

As he was wheeling a hand truck along Commonwealth Pier today, Patrick J. Ahearn, 51 years old, of Market street, Brighton, was run over and badly injured by an automobile driven by George Kiley of No. 1,098 Washington street.

Ahearn is at the Haymarket Relief Station, suffering from a fracture of the skull, internal and multiple injuries.

The car was skidding when it hit Ahearn, who is employed by the Coastwise Shipping Company.

GOODWIN GIVES WARNING ON COASTING

The authorities in every city and town in the State were appealed to today by Registrar Frank A. Goodwin to prevent coasting accidents.

At least one boy has been killed and several others injured since the arrival of the first fall of snow while coasting by colliding with automobiles, he disclosed. Last Winter there were nine killed, and the year before eleven met death in this manner. Hundreds were injured.

Goodwin also requested the cooperation of parents and teachers in the campaign to save lives, and to the latter he suggested that the hazards of coasting be made the subject of short compositions. Motorists also are cautioned.

ANNOUNCES 60 SERVICES FOR HOLY NAME

By JAMES WALSH.

The Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. J. Splaine, D. D., L. P. P., Chaplain General of the Holy Name Society for the Boston archdiocese expects the greatest outpouring of men at the union services in honor of the Feast of the Holy Name, to be held in 60 centres in the archdiocese, in the history of the society.

"The feast day will be observed in the diocese by general communion of all the men in their respective parish churches," he says. "In the afternoon and evening neighboring parishes will unite in convenient centres to hold union vesper services. At these services there will be appropriate sermons on the significance of the feast day and on the aims of the Holy Name Society.

"New members will be received and old members will renew their pledge of allegiance to honor the Name of Jesus in their lives. A special feature of the services will be the congregational singing of "The Hymn to the Holy Name," written especially for this society by His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell.

The annual Christmas dancing party for the members of the Catholic Union of Boston will be held tomorrow night in Catholic Union Hall, corner of Washington and Worcester streets. Henry I. Fitzgerald is the chairman of the committee in charge.

The custom of congregational singing of Christmas carols was inaugurated at St. Mary's Church, Endicott street, North End, last night. Instead of the usual Sunday evening devotions, the Rev. A. J. Duarte, S. J., rector of the church, asked the congregation to sing the old Catholic Christmas carols.

A triduum in honor of the birthday of St. Theresa, the Little Flower of Jesus, will begin in St. Stephen's Church, Hanover street, North End, on Saturday evening, January 2. It will continue through Sunday and will be brought to a close on Monday, January 4. The services each evening will begin at 7:45.

Winchester Court, No. 225, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, will hold a roll call and identification meeting in Lyceum Hall on Wednesday evening, January 6. Middlesex Court, No. 60, will hold a roll call and identification meeting Tuesday evening, January 12, in Elks Hall, Centre street, Newton.

The Rev. James L. McGovern, S. J., will begin an interesting course of lectures before the evening classes of the Young Men's Catholic Association on Thursday, January 7, on "The Details of Catholic Worship." The course will consist of ten lectures.

DX CONDITIONS LAST NIGHT

By "THE DOCTOR."

Another good night for distant reception. There was one drawback, however, and that was a "noisy" atmosphere. For some reason or other there seemed to be a lot of fuzzy noises which accompanied most of the stations.

This of course may have been caused by some condition in my own neighborhood. I listen in at Quincy. Local reception was ideal during the entire evening.

Interference from squealing regenerative sets is becoming worse since Christmas.

Radio Queries

Q—W. G. R., Revere. Will you please let me know through your Boston Evening American radio page, why I can't get outside stations on a Super-five "Belmont" set using five tubes. A friend of mine gets outside stations on hers and lives in Revere also. The aerial is 100 feet long and very high. I will watch the paper for your answer.

A—This is hard to answer without actually testing out your installation. All I can give you will be suggestions as to the probable cause of the trouble. In the first place look over your tubes and batteries. Remember that just because a tube lights it may not necessarily be a good tube. Your antenna and ground should be properly laid out, and all joints in the wires should be outside soldered. If you are satisfied that all these things are as they should be, I should then advise you to take your set to some responsible radio man for inspection.

Q—L. M. B., Onset. I have constructed a six-tube superheterodyne receiver using the Pressley Bridge circuit. Am troubled with squeals and unstable operation. Can you suggest anything that would eliminate my trouble?

A—I am of the opinion that the circuit you have attempted to build is a little too hard for you. Why don't you stick to a straight superheterodyne? A straight superheterodyne may be built with as low as seven tubes, and the construction, when using standard parts is remarkably easy.

Q—W. A. Wollaston. I have a Freed Eisemann Neutrodyne and whenever I set each dial exactly on the stations wave (such as WEEI or WNAC) the tone quality gets awfully fubby. I find it necessary to detune one of the dials in order to clear up reception. Can you tell me if this should be so?

A—This is a common condition with many neutrodynes. In all probability it is due to some tricky adjustment of the neutralizing condensers. The trouble could be eliminated by "over-neutralizing" the stages—but if this were done it would affect your distance.

Q. H. A. M. Eastport, Me. I have built a five-tube neutrodyne set, and cannot seem to neutralize it. Have tried every conceivable way without success. I am sure my tubes are O K, as they work all right in another set. I do not wish to use a potentiometer in my set. Can you recommend any other way that I could obtain positive results with no squealing?

A. I refer you to the device called the "Radiohm" which is a 200,000 ohm variable resistance made by the Central Radio Laboratory of Milwaukee. This instrument is connected in series with the B battery leads for the two radio frequency stages, and through its use the energy output of these tubes may be easily controlled without a potentiometer.

Q. A. M., Quincy. What is the highest voltage that can be used on the plates of the tubes of the Boston American 4R receiver?

A. 45 volts on the detector, and 90 volts on the amplifiers.

Q. D. G. G. Onset. Is there any way in which a Westinghouse R. C. set can be made to tune sharper?

A. About the only thing to do without rebuilding the set, is to try a wave trap. You might try some sort of inductive antenna coupling with this receiver, but this would complicate the tuning. The wave trap ought to work down in your location, especially on the Boston stations.

Q. W. E. Everett. Have a three tube Ware neutrodyne. Last Winter we could get Texas on it, but now can hear no better than Davenport, Iowa. What could happen to this machine to make such a difference?

A. Is it possible that you are expecting too much from your machine? Remember that receiving conditions are at their best during January, February and March, and that even then everything must be just right for you to get many of the long distance stations. Be patient a little while longer, and you will hear "Texas."

LAST CALL IN CONTEST

By MARTHA LEE.

Members of the WNAC Boston Evening American Women's Club who are competing in this month's membership drive, can use the quiet "after Christmas days" to advantage in rounding up last minute entries. The membership contest positively closes at midnight, December 31.

Please remember that each coupon MUST be personally signed by the new member. Lists are checked by telephone calls and letters of inquiry in fairness to all who have entered and I am sorry to say that in quite a few cases we have found that the women whose names have been sent in as new members know nothing of our club and have signed no coupon. This means, of course, that the entire entry has been thrown out.

There surely could have been no misunderstanding on this point for I have repeated over and over again that the one condition of this contest was that each new member MUST sign her own name to the coupon.

I am sure that you are all familiar with the wonderful prizes which have made this contest so interesting and worthwhile. Among the prizes are a Hoosier cabinet and an A. C. Dayton radio set complete with Splitdorf loud speaker.

Then comes a Gruen wrist watch, a tea wagon, 6 Wedgewood plates and 5 crystal glass soup plates, 10-piece bathroom equipment in Sno-Wite enamel, a Dario dish washer, 10 prizes of Talking Books, 25 prizes of O'Cedar products, and 13 prizes of Slade's products.

Questions and Answers

Mrs. D. S. W., one of our very good members in Woburn, writes me that a real tragedy befell her Christmas dessert because at the last minute the cream failed to whip. She asks if anything could have been done to save the situation. Yes, indeed, several little things. In the first place when you see that your cream is not whipping as it should, add a pinch of salt. If this fails, whip up the white of an egg until it is stiff, but not actually dry, pour the cream over this and set it in the ice chest until it is well chilled. It will then whip easily. Did you ever try whipping cream in a small pitcher? It whips more quickly than in an open bowl and with less spattering. The whipped cream will remain stiff if one teaspoon of dissolved gelatine is beaten into ½ pint of whipping cream.

MARTHA LEE

Mrs. W. T. B., of South Boston, is having trouble with her raised biscuits. She says that her family likes soft crusts on raised rolls, but hers are quite hard. If you will put a saucepan full of boiling water in the oven while your biscuits are baking, the rising steam will keep the tops smooth and tender. Another little trick is to cover bread with a paper bag to keep it from burning when baking in a hot oven.

Mrs. B. W. M., of Quincy, writes that she has had trouble in making a starch free from lumps. Did you listen to my broadcast last week on beating lumps out of starch with an egg beater? If, however, you will mix your starch in cold water in a cup and pour it into a saucepan of boiling water, it would be clear and free from lumps and streaks. Add a good pinch of salt for each quart to prevent sticking, and if you are going to let it stand awhile, cover it with a cloth and it will not skim over on top. Most people, I find, mix their starch with cold water in a saucepan and then pour on boiling water, which often accounts for the lumps.

Mrs. T. W. G., of Weymouth asks for a recipe for Ragout of Beef, which I am glad to give her.

RAGOUT OF BEEF

RECIPE NO. 1920

A ragout may be made of one of the cheaper cuts or if time is limited, from a slice of rump. Cut one pound of the beef into serving pieces, sprinkle with salt and pepper and flour. Try out some of the beef fat or suet and brown left in the pan, add 2 teaspoons of chopped onion and brown lightly. Stir in 2 tablespoons of flour, then one pint of boiling water, season quite highly, and pour over the meat. Cover tightly and bake slowly for about 2 hours. At the end of the first hour add ½ cup of cooked macaroni, and ½ cup tomato sauce made by stewing 1½ cups of canned tomatoes with a tablespoon of chopped onion or celery, a few bits of leftover carrots, 3 or 4 cloves, salt and pepper. Strain and thicken.

Mrs. W. P. S., asks what kind of potatoes are good to serve with a baked fish. Would you like these Swiss potatoes?

SWISS POTATOES

RECIPE NO. 1921

Peel your potatoes and slice them very thin. You will need about one quart. Slice them into a buttered agate baking dish or earthen casserole. In a small saucepan melt 4 tablespoons of butter. Add ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Pour half of this over the potatoes and bake in a hot oven. When half done stir them up with a fork and pour over the rest of the butter and bake until the edges of the potatoes are crisp and brown, stirring now and then.

Mrs. C. R. F., of Winthrop would like a recipe for a soft white frosting. I hope she will like this one:

SOFT FROSTING

RECIPE NO. 1922

Put in a saucepan 2 cups of powdered sugar, ½ cup milk, and 2 tablespoons butter. Heat very slowly and boil 2 minutes, or until a little of the mixture dropped into cold water will just hold together. Remove from the fire and beat until it is thick enough to spread.

Mrs. C. P. A., would like to know how to make an orange Sponge Cake which she has eaten at a certain popular tea room. I think this is their secret.

ORANGE SPONGE CAKE

RECIPE NO. 1923

To the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs add the 3 yolks one at a time, beating well between each yolk. Then add gradually, beating the cake all the time with the egg beater, ⅞ of a cup of sugar. Lay aside the egg beater and add to the mixture the grated rind of 1 orange and 1-3 cup of strained orange juice. Next fold in lightly a scant cup and a half of pastry flour which has been sifted with 1 teaspoon baking powder, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Bake in a moderate oven in rather small pan and ice with this orange frosting:

ORANGE FROSTING

RECIPE NO. 1924

Boil together half a cup of hot water and 2 cups sugar until it will spin a thread. Then pour the syrup slowly over two very stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour with one hand and beat with the other, beating all the time until the frosting is nearly stiff enough to spread. Put the mixture into a saucepan and set this in another larger pan of boiling water and cook, stirring constantly until the icing begins to sugar on the sides and bottom of the pan. Take it off the fire and add a little salt, 1-3 teaspoon orange flavoring and beat until ready to spread. Spread on the cake evenly. Let it cool and spread on top of this frosting a thin layer of melted cooking chocolate (you will need about 3 squares). Spread with a broad knife and before the chocolate hardens crease the cake into serving pieces so that it will not crack when it is cut.

Last of all, for Mrs. A. E. B. a recipe for Spice Cakes which are excellent for dessert, served hot with whipped cream or cold as cup cakes.

HOLIDAY CANDIES

Candy making is a popular pastime now when so many young folks are home on vacations and I think even the most blase "modern" gets a thrill out of a shining pan full of creamy walnut fudge or nut caramels. An old-fashioned candy pull is just as much fun now as it was twenty years ago. In fact, like Henry Ford's square dances, there seems to be quite a revival of these once popular pastimes. Old-fashioned molasses kisses are always delicious and are easily made by this recipe:

Molasses Kisses

Two tbsp. butter, ¼ cup water, 1 cup molasses, 3 tbsp. honey, 1 tbsp. corn syrup, 3 tbsp. sugar.

Put all the ingredients in a saucepan or iron kettle, stir until butter melts and sugar dissolves and boil until it forms a hard ball in cold water. Pour gently on buttered marble slab or large tray. When cool enough to handle pull until light. Use flour on the hands if candy sticks. Roll, cut in pieces and wrap in wax paper.

The recipe for the famous velvet kisses differs a little. This is the "how" of the velvets:

One-half cup molasses, 1½ cups sugar, ½ cup water, 1½ tbsp. vinegar, ¼ tsp. cream of tartar, 4 tbsp. butter, ⅛ tsp. soda.

Put the molasses, sugar, water and vinegar in saucepan, stir until it boils, and then add cream of tartar. Boil until the candy makes a hard ball when dropped in cold water, add butter and soda and cook until mixture becomes brittle when tried in cold water. Stir constantly during first part of cooking. Pour on buttered marble slab or enamel tray, and when cool pull until light. While pulling, flavor with one teaspoon vanilla, or half a teaspoon of lemon extract, or a few drops of oil of peppermint or wintergreen. Cut in pieces with scissors and wrap in wax paper.

Chocolate Fudge

The fudges are certainly the most popular of all our candies and they are made at a temperature of 230 to 238 Fahr. The perfect fudge is not stirred while it is hot. If you do you are bound to have a course and granular fudge. Instead let the syrup cool right in the sauce pan in which it is cooked. Don't touch it until it is cool and then stir it or work it with a spatula until it begins to stiffen, pour in a pan and cut when cool. If by chance you stir until too stiff to pour in the pan warm it just a tiny bit over hot water stirring constantly until it will pour. Water, milk, condensed milk (diluted with an equal amount of water), thin cream, heavy cream or solid cream can be used for fudge making. If you use water or skimmed milk, you will need more butter, but if a cream is used a little butter is required, with sour cream a few grains of soda are necessary. Corn syrup makes a very smooth fudge and variations are made by using brown sugar, or maple sugar.

CHOCOLATE FUDGE

RECIPE NO. 1702

Recipe No. 1702—Chocolate fudge. Two cups white sugar, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 squares chocolate, 2 teaspoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup milk, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Put sugars and milk in saucepan, stir until sugar is dissolved and boil without stirring to 238 degrees Fahrenheit, or until candy forms a soft ball when tried in cold water. Add chocolate, melted butter, and vinegar. Let cool in pan, add vanilla, and stir or work with a spatula until creamy. Pour into a buttered pan or shape on a marble slab, and when firm, cut in squares.

TABLE OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

It may be helpful to have the following table for reference:

3 level teaspoons equal 1 level tablespoon.
16 level tablespoons equal 1 cup
8 level tablespoons equal ½ cup
4 level tablespoons equal ¼ cup.
2 level tablespoons butter equal 1 ounce.
1 lb. butter, 2 cups packed solidly.
1 lb. granulated sugar, 2 cups.
1 lb. powdered sugar, 2 2-3 cups
1 lb. confectioners' sugar, 3½ cups.
1 lb maple sugar, 1¾ cups.
1 lb. brown sugar, 2 2-3 cups.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY SUGGESTION

Ring Out the Old Year With a New Year's Party!

Bells and horns and whistles are getting to be just as much a part of New Year's as firecrackers and skyrockets are a part of Fourth of July and quite as enjoyable. Many people still like to celebrate New Year's Eve in the big cafes and hotels, but more informal and enjoyable New Year's parties can be held at home.

One of the jolliest I ever attended was a mixed party at which each guest wore two masks, one over the face and one over the back of the head. The mask on the back was looking back at the old year and the mask on the face looking ahead into the new year.

When the guests arrived, cards were given them and pencils so as to jot down their guesses. To help identify the guests they were asked to step forward and speak some simple nursery rhyme.

After the guessing the mask over the face was removed and then games were played, many of them backwards. For instance, walking a chalk line backwards, that is with the mask apparently looking at the line, was great sport. There was a snowball fight with cotton batting balls rolled in Christmas snow.

Refreshments included a sweet cider punch that was delicious, and I pried the recipe away from the hostess to share with you.

SWEET CIDER PUNCH

3 oranges
1 lemon
½ cup maraschino cherries
1 quart cider

Extract the juices from the oranges and lemon and add them to the cider together with the cherries. Chill thoroughly and serve.

She also confided to me that the recipe for Frozen Salad Dessert had come from overseas. It was perfectly delicious, and I know you will want to try it.

FROZEN SALAD DESSERT

3 tbsp. sugar
3 tbsp. vinegar
Yolks of 3 eggs
1 can pineapple
½ lb. chopped nuts
1 doz. marshmallows
1 pt. whipped cream

Beat the eggs (yolks and whites together) and add gradually boiler until of the consistency of custard, stirring constantly. When cool, add the pineapple, nuts, marshmallows and whipped cream. Pack in ice and salt and then freez for 4½ hours.

With the salad was served walnut cookies made from this recipe:

WALNUT WAFERS

2 eggs
1 cup brown sugar
6 to 8 tbsp. flour
1 cup broken walnut meats
Pinch of salt

Beat the eggs (yolks and whites together and add gradually the brown sugar, beating constantly. Add salt and flour. Next add the walnut meats. Bake in the bottom of a muffin tin or drop on a buttered sheet about 2 in. apart. Bake for 10 min.

My memory of the rest of the refreshments is one of many plates of delicious sandwiches, a big dish piled with a mixture of cream cheese, chopped walnuts and hard boiled eggs with saltines conveniently nearby, salted nuts and tiny hard candies.

BUDGET CHAT FOR 1926

Adopt the Budget Plan for putting to rout the Spectre of the High Cost of Living

By MARTHA LEE.

You know the first step you should take, once you have decided to make the family budget, is an accurate inventory of all the family's assets and liabilities. First, list the worldly possessions of your own particular family, its investments, life insurance, money due it, real estate and personal property, which includes buildings, land, furnishings, stock, ready cash, savings bank account and shares in a co-operative bank. Then you should make another list of the family debts, this to include mortgages, notes and all miscellaneous debts.

Now compare what your family owes and what it owns and see if it is on a firm financial basis. If your debts are accumulating more rapidly than your assets, the danger signals are out and you should at once try to find the reason. Can the debts be reduced by a more careful spending of the family income? Are the debts for helpful things, such as a home, education, working equipment and so forth, or are they debts left over from a previous year, through injudicious expenditures? Would it be good business to pay off the debts by sacrificing some of the assets? If the trouble is that your current expenses exceed your income, your standards of living should be changed until they reach a level that your income can support.

ESTIMATE INCOME.

This will include all salaries, interest, dividends, commissions or other money which will be available during the year. Next figure up the market value of all food raised in the home garden and eaten by the family, and also the market value of eggs, chickens, milk or meat raised and eaten by the family. The money value of the labor of the different members of the family should also be considered when you are figuring the cost of service, food and clothing, and the interest on the money invested in your home, if you own it, should be considered when you are figuring the real cost of living.

These additions to the regular cash income of the family are sometimes called the material income, and because one family is more fortunate in this material income than another they can maintain from a smaller cash income, of course, a higher standard of food, clothing, service, shelter and so forth, than a less fortunate family. In many cases we find that families with a small money income have so large a material income that their problems in economy are much less than those of another family whose money income is much greater.

Let me urge you once more to get your whole family interested in your budget. You will find that no individual member is selfish enough to want to spend carelessly when they see that in gratifying their whims they have deprived the rest of the family of necessities or comforts. Even the children will learn to spend intelligently when they realise that the wasting of small sum means that mother must deny herself some needed article of clothing and that a carelessly torn suit must be replaced by father's self-denial.

PICKING THE SPENDER.

Many times we find that the ideal arrangement of spending the family income is for either father or mother to be responsible for the actual spending. The only question is which is really the best fitted. Many times one or the other head of the family lacks self-control or, on account of improper early training in the use of money, has poor judgment in the selection of materials, foods and so forth. Of course the ideal arrangement is a joint account, with both husband and wife able to draw upon it at will, but this is not always practical. Make a decision as harmoniously as possible, just who is to be responsible for the spending in the family; or, if you decide on a joint bank account, make a division of the financial responsibility, certain bills to be paid by the husband and others to be paid by the wife.

No matter just what plan is adopted, the husband and wife should consider themselves equally responsible. Real success comes not through the particular method chosen, but from the mutual agreement that the method is desirable and the acknowledgment and constant practice of equal partnership in the family finances.

SPICE CAKES

RECIPE NO. 1925

To one cup of bread flour which has been sifted with one teaspoon of soda, add 2 tablespoons more of bread flour. Also add ½ teaspoon each, of ginger, cloves, cinnamon nutmeg, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Have buttered and floured muffin pans ready. Then mix well 1-3 cup butter, and ½ cup sugar. Add one well beaten egg, 1-3 cup molasses, the flour and last of all, slowly, half a cup of boiling water. Beat well, fill the pans half full, and bake about 20 minutes in a moderate oven. This will make about 15 cup cakes.

Smoothtop

The NEW GAS Range with 3 cooking zones

Boiling Zone

Other Gas Ranges cook over the burner only. The "Smoothtop" is hot all over. For quick cooking the concentrated heat of the New Speed Burner Works 25 per cent. faster.

Simmering Zone

When the food starts to cook, it is pushed back to the simmering zone. This leaves the boiling zone free for other foods to be cooked, saving time and gas.

Warming Zone

Here foods are kept at just the right temperature until ready to serve and without lighting an extra burner. Thus an entire meal may be cooked and brought to the table "piping hot."

PHONE GIRL SAVES 3 NEAR DEATH BY GAS

Albina Lucey, Malden phone girl whose quick action in calling aid saved lives of three persons overcome by coal gas. She lives in Melrose.

Three persons, in Malden, were overcome by coal gas, and escaped death only through the courage of Mrs. John R. Ainsley, and the quick wit of Albina Lucey, a phone operator, living at No. 112 Linwood avenue, Melrose. After dinner Mrs. Ainsley, her husband and her mother, Mrs. Alvina Sweeney, of No. 11 Bickford road, were taking a nap in the living room of their home. Fire in a small stove, the door of which was open, allowed gas to fill the room.

Mrs. Ainsley was awakened by a severe headache. By a supreme effort she dragged herself to a telephone, and managed to gasp "Doctor" before collapsing.

Miss Lucey, suspecting something, notified the doctor nearest the home and the police. The physician hurrying to the house found all three unconscious.

CHANGE SEX OF SALAMANDER BY SCIENCE

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 28 (A.P.).—Since time immemorial the chameleon has changed its color, but it remained for the salamander, with the aid of science, to achieve the distinction of being the first creature to change its sex, the American Society of Zoologists learned today during the first meeting of its two-day session at Yale University.

Other scientific achievements reported were the successful transplantation of hearts and eyes from one species of salamander to another and the amputation of [illegible] limbs from living [illegible] embryos while still unborn.

Dr. Robert K. Burns, Jr., of the University of Cincinnati read a paper reporting the results of experimenting in grafting different species of salamanders in the manner of the Siamese Twins while still in the egg stage. The sex of the stronger invariably predominated to the exclusion of the sex of the weaker in such fusions, he demonstrated.

Dr. W. H. F. [illegible] of the University [illegible] Medical School told of the transplantation of hearts, an experiment only partly successful in that it resulted in death for one species, although the heart of the other species was accelerated by such operations.

WIVES PLEADED NOT GUILTY

In correction of [illegible] in last Thursday's Boston Evening American, the American wishes to state today that Mrs. Mildred Redmond and Mrs. Grace Lamont pleaded "not guilty" in Federal Court to conspiracy to conceal assets in bankruptcy proceedings.

Mrs. Redmond is the wife of George F. Redmond, treasurer of the defunct brokerage concern of G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc., and Mrs. Lamont is the wife of James S. Lamont, president of the concern.

It was erroneously reported that they pleaded guilty to the conspiracy charge on which they were indicted jointly with their husbands. They will not be prosecuted on the charge.

Redmond and Lamont are now serving sentences, Lamont on this charge and Redmond on this and another charge.

A Real Life Serial of Love and Temptation in the Mad Whirl of Boston Business

"You'll marry me," said Tom confidently Mary Rose was sad.

READ THIS FIRST:

FLOSSIE and MARY ROSE MIDDLETON are two pretty sisters, the daughters of a widowed mother. Both of them work for Dexter & Co., big Congress street bond firm.

Flossie helps keep the files under MISS MACFARLANE. She is engaged to SAM JESSUP, secretary to HILARY DEXTER, head of the concern.

Mary Rose is stenographer to the sales manager, JOHN MANNERS, and is in love with him. But he is engaged to DORIS HINIG, a girl of wealth

Mary Rose discovers that Flossie is carrying on a flirtation with Hilary Dexter, who's married and the father of grown children.

Flossie begins a campaign to captivate John Manners—not because she cares for him, but simply to show Mary Rose how easy it is to take a man away from another girl. But Manners is not impressed with Flossie. On the other hand, he begins to pay Mary Rose little attentions. One night he drives her home from work, and they go for a ride in the country, and are late getting home. Mary Rose finds DR. TOM FITZROY, who wants to marry her, waiting for her. A messenger boy brings a telegram to her mother, telling her of the illness of her brother. Mary Rose and Tom take MRS. MIDDLETON to her train, and on the way home the girl tells Tom she's in love with Manners. They arrive at the house to find that Flossie is going to give a party. The guests are arriving.

CHAPTER XVI

(Copyright [illegible])

"Sweet spirits of nite! How d'l you get here so soon," they heard Flossie ask excitedly as she opened the front door to her guests.

A babble of voices answered her. "In Sam's old bus! Sam brought us in the Wheeze. Six of us crammed in the old Wheezer, can you imagine?"

Then Alice James' high soprano voice "And we stopped in at a delicatessen and bought it out. Looks rye bread! rye bread! And cheese! And gingerale! And smoked ham! And pickles!"

"And you forgot oranges!" they heard Flossie wail. "How is the hotel bill are we going to have cocktails, if you didn't bring oranges?"

Mary Rose looked at Tom. "They are not going to have drinks in this house!" she said decidedly. "Mother wouldn't let them, if she were here. And I won't let them."

Tom laid his hand on her arm. "I don't believe they have any liquor," he said quietly. "I haven't heard them mention anything to drink."

"Let's go for a ride," said Tom. Mary Rose agreed. When they returned Tom squeezed her hand and said confidently, "You'll marry me I know." Mary Rose was sad and far away.

They sat in the little back parlor when they returned.

Out in the kitchen there were sounds of merry making. Laughter and singing, and then more laughter. The crash of a dish as it broke on the floor. A girl's shrill scream.

Then the piano in the next room was attacked by some one who played "Chopsticks."

After that a man's voice, Sam Jessup's, began to sing in a sentimental tenor voice:

"Moonlight and roses
Bring wonderful mem'ries of you—"

Mary Rose raised her lovely, flushed face, and laughed in spite of herself. "He's probably singing that straight at Flossie, and Flossie's probably flirting her wickedest with one of the other 'cake-eaters' in the crowd!" she said. "Poor old Sam!"

Tom eyed her seriously. "They

BIG GAINS IN REVENUE OF B. & M. ROAD

This year has been fine for the Boston & Maine Railroad. When the last nickel has been clinked into the sack at the tag end of next Thursday and 1925, the stockholders should wear a grin from starboard to port.

Above 300 per cent, additional did the surplus after charges of the road soar in the first eleven months of 1925, over the first eleven of 1924, the road's statement, made public today, shows.

The railroad, as a result, is in clover. It made $2,988,32[illegible] more in the first eleven months of this year than in the first eleven of last year. Total surplus after charges for 1925, through November, was $4,425,516.35.

For November alone, the net income jumped $459,246.47, or more than 400 per cent above the $112,1[illegible]3.67 net for November, 1924. The total net income for November, 1925, was $571,420.14.

The jump is despite a loss of $15,165.68 in passenger revenue for November, greatly offset by an increase of $176,843.47 in freight revenues.

Said the road's report:

"The reduction in operating expenses continued, and with a saving of $262,281.87, as compared with last November, the ratio between operating revenues and expenses was reduced from 81.10 per cent. to 74.29 per cent.

Congress Urged to Investigate Big Combine; States Are Fast Losing Control

By LIVY S. RICHARD

Washington, Dec. 28.—The Bell Telephone monopoly has collected from the American people in rate increases in the last six years, inquiry by the Hearst newspapers shows, close to $500,000,000 and is looking for more.

It has, in this period, extracted above pre-war rates [illegible] $51,000,000; New York State $3[illegible]; Illinois $3[illegible]; California $5,1[illegible]; in Massachusetts $[illegible] in Pennsylvania [illegible] grading downward [illegible] the remaining States [illegible] has escaped.

A recent increase [illegible] Massachusetts provides for $960,000 exclusive of other increases in that State.

War-time Federal control of the phones began August [illegible] and ended July [illegible] 1919. Postmaster General Burleson [illegible] granted an increase of tolls in January 21, 1919, and an [illegible] exchange rates on May 1 [illegible] in cases [illegible] 1919.

STATES LOSING HOLD

These increases were [illegible] State after State beyond [illegible] 1, 1919 upon petition to [illegible] action of the State regulating [illegible]. In nearly half the States [illegible] forts for further increases [illegible] the way.

Service costs of other [illegible] ing and power and [illegible] or decreasing but phone rates are still ballooning.

When State regulators have tried to put brakes on Bell [illegible] peals to Federal courts have [illegible] then them. As a result [illegible] interference. State regulation [illegible] rapidly breaking down.

[illegible] hearings the Bell [illegible] down a heavy barrage of [illegible] expert testimony [illegible] backed by reams of figures while the communities affected because of lack of funds [illegible] interest are usually represented inadequately.

ENDS AGAINST MIDDLE

The phone monopoly [illegible] in hearings because it does not have to pay the cost of [illegible] rate payers pay. The monopoly [illegible] makes a profit out of each grant of higher rates. If it gets what it wants—and it almost invariably does from a Federal court—[illegible] much in pocket.

It is because of this endless chain of rising charges due to lack of effective regulation that demand is pouring in for a drastic investigation by the new Congress.

Those who have studied phone monopoly workings point out as one phase in need of probing the so-called 4½ per cent license contract between the parent Bell Corporation, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company and its subsidiaries. When a rate increase is won by the child the owning parent also wins loudly.

LANDRY FOUND TO BE SUICIDE

Medical Examiner Timothy Leary reported today that Frederick Landry, 24, son of A. H. Landry, president of the Landry Loom Co. of Townsend, was a suicide. Landry's body was found in his room in a lodging house in Oak street, South End.

The body was shipped to the home of his parents in Townsend where funeral services will be held tomorrow. Landry's father denied that his son, who was employed as an orderly at Massachusetts General Hospital, was despondent because of unrequited love for a nurse. The police at first feared he was a victim of foul play.

COUNCIL DESK BID PROBED

The Finance Commission is starting an investigation today of the awarding of a $[illegible] contract for furnishing the City Council [illegible] to the second lowest bidder by Superintendent of Buildings [illegible] Englert, who was appointed by Mayor Curley.

The probe began with a public hearing [illegible] several city officials, business men and citizens were summoned as witnesses.

The contract was awarded to the Gray Furniture Company of Lowell on a bid of $18,[illegible]00. Herbert W. Doten bid $[illegible]. All other bidders were higher than that of the Gray Company, ranging upward to $23,[illegible].

Doten is said to have protested to the Finance Commission in protest.

The city specified African [illegible] any desks and a heavy carpet and the completion of the job by next Monday, when the twenty two newly elected councillors take office.

THEIR PAPA DIED FOR OTHERS

One of the most pathetic cases of bereavement by the fire disaster in Scituate and Norwell in which three were killed is the family of George Burrows, whose children beg mother to tell them why "Daddy" is absent from home and why mother's tears at this joyous season. Burrows and his comrades were rushing to Norwell to save other tots from fire when their truck overturned and hurled the three men to death. Left to right, Barbara Burrows, aged five, Mrs. Burrows, George, aged six months and Elmer, aged two. It is for these and dependents of the other men that Scituate women are raising a memorial fund.

SPORT EDITORIAL

IT doesn't take long to undo the fame built up by months and years of steady training and the hardest kind of playing in desperate contests. That great Notre Dame quartet known as "The Four Horsemen" has found it so. Then went out with some others of the South Bend aggregation that made such a wonderful name for itself a year ago and played a couple of games of professional football. One was in Philadelphia and the other in Cleveland. They were beaten both times.

Away goes the tremendous glamor that surrounded the "Horsemen" of a year ago.

Just after they had closed their wonderful year of slaughtering everything that went against them, they all declined offers to play pro football. For that particular stand they received the approbation of the athletic world. The quartet consisted of Stuhldrehér, a great general and runner; Miller, great end runner; Crowley, star off tackle, known for long end runs and particularly brilliant in a broken field, and Layden, marvelous plunger and punter. It was a back field of the greatest merit.

The mistake they made was when they played pro football as "The Four Horsemen" and not as individuals. It was a sacrifice of all their glory and everlasting fame for the elusive old dollar.

There is no reason why their wonderful work should not have lived on forever. But the glamour is gone now.—ED W. SMITH.

Football Reformers Coming to Meeting

By BILL GRIMES

New York, Dec. 28.—All the foot[illegible]

The alleged "over-emphasis" and growth of professional football will be threshed out. From the [illegible] throughout the country and especially in New England regarding football being over-emphasized, the discussion on this subject promises to be long and heated.

[illegible]

During this week the final word on who will coach at Columbia University will be given. Charlie Crowley is in New York and he has his backers. Some of the most powerful alumni of Columbia are behind Crowley and will do everything in their power to put him over. It is also expected that Syracuse and Colgate will make known their selections for head coach for the coming season. These announcements may be of great interest to Boston, for it is expected that a local coach will be at one of these berths next Fall.

FLATLEY CALLS 'EM

Coach's Week
Drive on Salaries
Robby and Brown
McGraw Has Heart

—By NICK FLATLEY—

THE muddled football coaching situation should be cleared up to a great extent this week. Half a dozen colleges are ready to announce new leaders. The air has been full of chatter about lower salaries and student coaching and all that, but it doesn't mean a thing.

Nick Flatley

The quotations on good coaches are just as high as ever, and the boys who can bring the winning teams will receive larger checks than ever next Fall.

There is an idea prevalent in some spots that football has reached such a pinnacle of financial prosperity that big salaries for instructors are unnecessary.

THIS is in accord with the usual college procedure. The chaps who run things pay out willingly while they're building up. Then when success arrives, they think they can coast along on their own momentum. It isn't done.

The Brown release of Ed Robinson was the biggest shock the football world has had in years. Robby was a tradition at Providence, a remarkably fine personality as well as a great coach. It had been known that a few revolutionists were after his scalp, but it wasn't believed that Edward would be tossed aside.

Robby is a football fanatic. He loves the game, and he passes his spirit along to his players. He has had a most remarkable record over a quarter of a century.

HIS successor will have a mighty hard row to hoe. Brown always chews off one of the toughest schedules, and Brown has always come through slightly better than creditably. The next Brown coach, whoever he may be, will find that Robby had something.

Dozens of times, through the years, Robinson might have signed juicy contracts. Colleges here, there and everywhere have been paging him. He never drew a heavy salary at Brown, but he didn't care. He felt that he belonged.

Edward isn't as young as he used to be, but he has every football notion there is. He has worked miracles with small squads. He showed the East how the flat forward pass, over the line, could be made a deadly offensive weapon.

He will get a lot of money somewhere next year.

JOHN McGRAW of the Giants evidences the possession of sentiment by naming the streets in his Florida real estate development after the great old-timers in baseball. The little Napoleon doesn't do that for advertising.

His property is a gold mine, one of the real spots among the millions that are good on paper only. The leader of the Giants has many faults, but he has a big heart. He has done more for the old timers in baseball than all the rest of the magnates and officials together.

Any veteran, down on his luck, has a job with McGraw any time he asks for one. The Giants have more scouts and coaches than most teams have players, and the majority of them are merely pension berths.

FINNEGAN ON ROAD TO TITLES

1926 May See Feather Crown Resting on Brow of Local Lad

By RINGSIDE

A TALL angular kid is Honeyboy Finnegan. A ring freak such as was Ruby Robert Fitzsimmons. But Ruby Robert became a worlds champion in more than one division. Today there's every indication that Honeyboy Finnegan will be a champion in one division with a strong probability of his being able to step up a notch, as did the tall Cornish man, and gather in another title.

Finnegan—Richard Gerald to give him his full name—is a Bostonian in every sense of the word. While his best fights have been away from this city he has, nevertheless shown in several bouts here which convinced his most ardent admirers, and the skeptics, too, of his ring ability. Every featherweight in the ring who is worthy of consideration in championship arguments has been met and bested by Finnegan.

But one remains—Kid Kaplan of Meridan, Ct.—and there are those who insist that once Honeyboy clashes with the Connecticut lad the world's title will come to Boston, where once before it rested with honor. Within the week Kaplan has declined a chance to box Finnegan at championship weight and with the title involved.

Dick Finnegan was born out in Dorchester. His father was a fighting man—not a fighter with the gloves, but one with arms—a member of the United States Marine Corps.

Dick Finnegan's father gave all he had for his country. He died in the service of the United States Marine Corps during one of those terrific drives on the Western front when men were men and fought to render this world safe.

The boy wanted to fight even then, but they wouldn't let him. Vainly he sought to enter the United States Navy, but recruiting officers, much though they sought enlistments, scorned his pleas for the chance. Having been born on August 26, 1902, he was only fourteen when the United States entered the war and hadn't reached his fifteenth birthday when he sought to enlist.

Then, as now, he was a tall growing boy; but about his face there was the youthful look which prevented his carrying out his wish. His home was with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey McCarron, out in Dorchester.

DOWN into Connecticut he hied himself, and if he couldn't get in and fight with guns he could get a job in the Colt arms factory and help make guns with which the fighting was done.

And so he did in 1918. In 1919 at the age of 17, he enlisted in the United States Navy and was assigned to the Battleship North Dakota.

His first fight was with a [illegible] named Curley from Lowell, whom he whipped in six rounds. In 1920 he won his first championship belt—that which established him as champion of the Atlantic fleet. To win this belt he fought often, for nothing, and was continually in training.

Jimmy Hackley of the Colorado held the Pacific fleet title that year and when the two great fleets merged at Colon for combined maneuvers, athletic events featured the gathering.

The boxing championships outshone all other sporting happenings and there, before 25,000 officers, soldiers, sailors and marines, in Panama City's ball park, Finnegan won his first all Navy title. He handily bested Hackley and for doing so received the magnificent total of $30.

Jose Lombardo was then the featherweight champion of South and Central America. He was, and is a mighty nifty performer within the squared circle. So plans were laid for a clash between he and Finnegan.

It was staged in the bullring at Colon and with 25,000 looking on Finnegan roundly trounced Lombardo in twelve rounds, winning the decision. Despite the tremendous gathering his bit for that bout was only $300.

Bobby Garcia had won the championship of the United States Army and there was ag[illegible] for a bout between he and Finnegan for the championship of the United States services. It was held at Berwyn, Md., in 1923 before [illegible] a gathering of [illegible] and in a bout Finnegan [illegible] to make 126 pounds [illegible] when he did [illegible] Bobby in twelve [illegible].

ONCE more it was a packed house and once [illegible] [illegible] was [illegible]

He came back to [illegible] to make his way [illegible] Somebody sent him [illegible] Carroll with his cl[illegible] [illegible] of his ring [illegible]

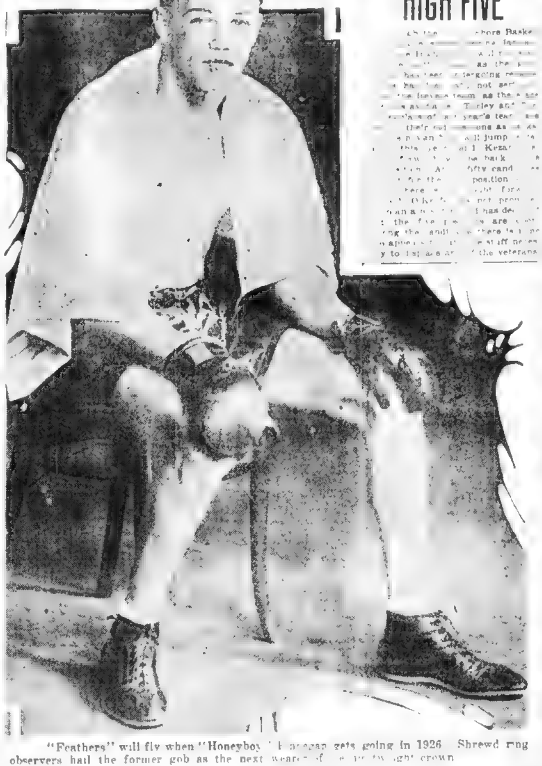
A knockout over [illegible] of Lowell in three [illegible] opener. And then [illegible]

[illegible] year yet [illegible] one wisely [illegible] out.

Patient work in the gymnasium and bouts with boxers who were better than he was the order of events. In that first real year, 1924 he had five knockouts to his credit, won six decisions, was proclaimed the winner in two no decision bouts [illegible] newspaper [illegible] and lost one fight.

It was [illegible] that the year [illegible] was to be a banner one for [illegible] and truly it has for in [illegible] year he beat the man who is [illegible] as featherweight champion by virtue of having won the honors in the ring. Johnny Dundee then bested Danny Kramer who was runner-up to Kaplan in the New York [illegible] and knocked Babe Ruth [illegible] in Philadelphia was grooming as a title contender. Dick has had his last bout for the year 1925 but he starts 1926 off right on the opening [illegible] when he boxes Lew Mayrs in Philadelphia.

A King in 1926?



"Feathers" will fly when "Honeyboy" Finnegan gets going in 1926. Shrewd ring observers hail the former gob as the next wearer of the [illegible] crown.

INSIDE GOLF

Whether the pivot, the turning of the shoulders deliberately to the right on the back swing—is used is not so important as keeping the shoulders in unison with the club. That is a detail that must be mastered because if the shoulders lag behind the club in the back swing they will be ahead of the club in the forward swing and times [illegible] will be spoiled. nate woman. She has a loving husband, a home, children, amusement, prosperity.

Ah yes. But I happen to know that woman's earlier life. What she has now is built upon years of bitter grief and disappointment that have aged her before her time.

The blessings she has now have come almost too late. Her heart is tired. Her spirit is worn with waiting and with struggle. For what we want we want when we want it, not when it pleases fate or chance to give it to us. Often we are too old to profit by life's deferred favors.

So I say, do not envy anybody. Do not grow discouraged yourself—the best may be yet to come. What are Browning's beautiful lines:

"Grow old along with me,
The best is yet to be—
The last of life, for which the first was made!"

Tom closed the front door, and then came and stood before her.

"You'll have to pull yourself together and put her to bed, Mary Rose," he said. "I just dumped her on top of her bed."

He picked up his hat and coat from the hall settee, took out his pipe, filled it and lighted it. Still Mary Rose didn't move.

"Tom, I just can't go up there," she said, staring straight in front of her. "To think that a sister of mine would drink! It just seems to me I can't touch her."

But presently she got up, went upstairs, and put the unconscious Flossie to bed as if she had been a baby.

IVORY CHOPSTICKS

By Alexander Samalman

C[illegible] restaurant [illegible] five [illegible] tenement house. A very narrow [illegible] led up to it. The [illegible] many people ascended this stair [illegible] during a day.

"Can't velly well bring 'em," with an almost [illegible] Chinese accent. [illegible] a few pairs of ivory chopsticks, and [illegible] bring 'em to you, every one [illegible]

"Oh, Shucks!" sighed the man. "And the wooden ones have such a [illegible] taste."

Lizzie [illegible] interest. Already an idea [illegible] in her mind [illegible] intrigue. [illegible] the man again, [illegible] and long at Lizzie, whose wrath grew greater momentarily.

Watched Him Eat.

On another day, [illegible] from the obliging waiter a pair of [illegible] ivory chopsticks.

Lizzie watched [illegible] eat. As he [illegible] the idea which she had [illegible] conceived on a former occasion developed fully. [illegible] would see to it that he was found guilty of stealing a pair of the ivory chopsticks. This unfortunately, would be only petty larceny, but Lizzie [illegible] that [illegible] hope [illegible] that [illegible] man. She no longer had her influential friends.

So when the man stepped to the counter to pay for his meal, Lizzie [illegible] over to his table.

On a rack near it lay the man's hat, coat and brief case. [illegible] had noticed this brief case many times before, and depended on its being [illegible]. She glanced around and, seeing that she was not being observed, opened [illegible]. The contents were of [illegible] she had expected them to be. The case was crammed [illegible] papers of all sorts and besides with much scrap paper which had evidently been put in it because of the lack of a wastebasket. Lizzie picked the [illegible] from the table, plunged them [illegible] deepest corner of the case [illegible] reached her booth just as [illegible] proceeded to his table.

Unsuspecting [illegible] man put on his coat and [illegible] his brief case and left. Lizzie [illegible] content.

An hour later [illegible] was a great commotion in [illegible] restaurant. The proprietor, Ching Foo, a rather stout Chinese with a tiny black mustache, addressed some words, both Chinese and American, which cannot be [illegible] down here, to the waiter. [illegible] his assistant answered Ching Foo with several impertinent Chinese expressions.

Things Went Well

Lizzie smiled [illegible] realized that things were going [illegible] for her than she had dared hope. The Chinamen were [illegible] very angry. Lizzie knew that because she understood the objectionable phrases of almost every language.

"Fool!" stormed Ching Foo. "Chopsticks worth many yen in Chinese money."

"I'm not responsible for what your customers do," [illegible] said, with a shrug of his [illegible] "Look after 'em yourself."

Eventually Ching Foo quieted down.

He carefully ransacked his desk, and at [illegible] found [illegible] search. It was a very small, plain card, on which said simply: "Randolph Evoren, [illegible]"

"Give me [illegible] writing paper," commanded Ching Foo of his menial, an[illegible] a [illegible] letter asking the [illegible] to [illegible] was carefully addressed, sealed and mailed.

Five days later the [illegible] man arrived, unruffled, [illegible] unconscious, to all appearances that anything a bit out of the ordinary had taken place.

Ching Foo very swiftly advanced to meet him. A torrent of redhot words burst from his lips.

"What's the matter, Ching?" inquired the man, familiarly.

"Matter enough!" growled the Chinese.

"I hope it's nothing serious."

Ching Foo's temper, which he had with some success controlled before, now got the better of him.

"Thief! Robber!" The Chinese spat in the man's face.

"Why—er—what is it?" nervously inquired the victim of Ching Foo's wrath.

Convinced Ching.

"You stole my ivory chopsticks!"

The man laughed. "No, sir," he said to the Chinese. "You'd better quit your spitting and go after the right fellow, if you wish to escape without a knockout punch from me."

Little by little, the man convinced Ching Foo that he had stolen nothing. Then Lizzie interfered.

"Ching," she argued, "don't believe that fellow. He's got the chopsticks. I saw him put them in his brief case the last time he was here."

"Try to find them," challenged the man.

Lizzie immediately opened the case, plunged her hand into its deepest corner, and to the delight of Ching Foo, drew out two ivory chopsticks.

"Lo," grunted the proprietor. "What we do to this stylish young robber?"

"Take him to the court right away," advised Lizzie. "He deserves a lot of punishment. I bet he stole more from here than just the pair of chopsticks."

"Always he paid for his meals," hesitated Ching Foo.

"Don't be foiled by that, Ching," rejoined Lizzie. "This kind of a fellow always pays his bills so as to cover up his thieveries. I hate thieves! I hate them all! And I hate this one more than all the rest put together."

Now Ching Foo's waiter, who thus far had been silent, chimed in: "Liz is right," he said. "Our old Chinese prophets said that one who would steal velly little would also steal velly much."

Somehow or other, the man thus maligned was not perturbed the least bit. He merely smiled. Suddenly he drew a large revolver from his pocket.

"Now," he ordered, "all of you stay right here—keep still and listen to all I have to say."

Fright was easily discernible on Ching Foo's face, but his mental features did not even show surprise. As for Lizzie, she dropped a cigarette and turned a hundred colors in as many seconds.

The man went on.

Knew It All.

"My name is Randolph Evoren, as you know." He paused and turned his coat lapel, showing a gleaming silver badge.

"I'm a member of the Jonson Detective Agency," he said. "I know perfectly well that this woman whom you call 'Liz' put the pair of chopsticks in my bag because she didn't like my looks."

The man paused to let this sink in.

"And I also know," he continued, "that this woman whom you call 'Liz' is Mary Sampter, alias Martha Woodridge, alias Lizzie West, who helped 'Red' Hammerman steal $15,000 out of a hick town bank. I always had the suspicion that the woman whom you call 'Liz' was no other than Mary, and my contention was proved by the finger prints headquarters found on the chopsticks. So come along Mary—you're going to jail for the third time."

BABY'S PLAYTHINGS

By Lucy Lowell

DO you give your young baby bells, jingles, loud rattles or other disturbing noise-makers to play with?

Do you give him painted toys? Strings of beads or buttons?

Do you wash his toys?

Do you feed him from a glass bottle?

Minnie Watson Kamm, an expert on child training, gives in a recent work some valuable advice to mothers regarding their babies' playthings.

The first object to be offered for the amusement of the baby—and this should not be until he is four months old, she declares—may be a fresh sheet of crumpled white bond paper. This, she points out, is sanitory, easily grasped and crackles in a loud but not startling manner, and therefore interests and perplexes the child, leading him to persistent effort and concentration.

For a six-month-old baby Mrs. Kamm recommends a square or rectangular-faced block, rubber or wooden ball, an aluminum cup or collapsible tapemeasure which the baby quickly learns to operate. She says:

"A string of beads or buttons, a rattle with small bells or bits of metal or wood attached are obviously dangerous. Long, slender playthings such as a clothespin or a spoon are not as good as more bulky objects, for there always is danger of pushing them down the throat far enough to injure it.

"A glass bottle, although sanitary, is highly objectionable, for glass particles are sure to chip off by banging against the crib and may be carried to the mouth."

FOXY GRANDPA BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

AN elderly cousin of mine had come to visit us and she was what my mother used to call kind of "pernikity." You know what that is—a little fussy and doesn't like to have things mussed up.

"That's a very handsome dog you have, Foxy Grandpa," she said to me after she had taken off her coat and hat and laid them neatly on the arm of a chair, "but I hope he won't jump up on me."

Bunny gave Bobby a look and Scotty, our beautiful collie, closed his mouth tightly, because he had been grinning with pleasure over the compliment which Cousin Emily had just paid him.

Indeed Scotty didn't bother Cousin Emily at all. He kept out of doors most of that afternoon, because, I honestly believe, that Scotty understands the English language.

While we were undressing to go to bed Bobby said something about Cousin Emily being an old maid and I reproached him and said he shouldn't call her that.

"What shall I call her, Foxy Grandpa?" he asked.

"Cousin Emily is a maiden-lady—a spinster."

"If she were about forty years younger I suppose she would be a bachelor-girl," mused Bobby. "Whatever she is, she's cranky, Foxy Grandpa. She doesn't think much of Scotty, and you notice that Bunny went off this afternoon and said she was going to spend a few days in the country with those big Belgian cousins of his. She's just breaking up our home."

"Oh, she'll only be here a few days, so make the best of it, Bobby. She means well."

Cousin Emily and I went for a walk the next morning. She wanted to buy some yarn and a new crochet needle. And it was just about 11:30 when we returned.

Twelve o'clock rang and the whistles blew. The yarn was wound and Cousin Emily was starting her crotchetting.

In a few minutes the doorbell rang and I answered it. In bustled Scotty with the strap of Bobby's books in his mouth and the books dangling from it. After Scotty came Bobby, his little face red from his run home.

"Well, Bobby?" said Cousin Emily, "did you know your lessons?"

"Yes, Cousin Emily," replied Bobby.

Then she saw Scotty lay Boboy's books down.

"Did you meet Scotty out front?" she asked.

"He always comes to school for me and brings my books home," replied Bobby.

Cousin Emily was nicer to Scotty after that.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for published smart sayings. Address "Smart Sayings," Boston Evening American.

My five year old brother was fussing for something to do.

George: "Ma, what can I do?"

Ma: "Go and dig up the garden."

George (after a long time up in the garden): "Ma, where can I put the garden after I dig it up?"

DR. REED'S SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President American Medical Association.

THERE is annually, Summer and Winter, but more in Summer than Winter, a large movement of people from the cities and inland districts to the sea shore.

A movement of this kind, one that is rapidly increasing, must have some sound reason back of it.

Of course there is the demand for rest, bodily and physically; there is the desire for the stimulus of change; and there is the longing for pleasure.

But physicians very often prescribe sea air as beneficial not only for fatigue but for various diseases.

The beneficial effect of sea air over and above the air of the inland has been ascribed to its purity, to the presence of electricity, finally, to an increased quantity of ozone (condensed oxygen).

All these factors certainly play an important role in the cure of diseases.

But of greater importance is the presence in the sea air of certain chemical elements, which are present in larger quantities in the open sea, as compared to the land atmosphere.

Of special interest and importance is the presence of iodine in the sea air.

The water of the ocean contains a large quantity of iodine. Iodine may be present in the water in different forms, some soluble and others insoluble.

The researches of distinguished scientists have shown that iodine may be found in the sea water in all these varieties.

It has also been shown that the total quantity of iodine remains constant in the different layers of water, although its chemical composition varies according to the depth of the sea. Thus soluble iodine, which is fixed in the sea by different living organisms and plants, is found more towards the surface of the water. This is due to the fact that the sea weeds, which take up the iodine of the sea and fix it in their cells, live only at levels where the sun can penetrate. Beneath 1,100 feet the sea water contains very little of living organisms.

According to the findings of Gautier, it would appear that only organic iodine is present in the air. He found that at the temperature of freezing, the air of Paris contains 0.0013 milligrams of iodine.

The air examined in the open sea at a distance of forty-five miles from the shore contains 0.0167 milligrams of iodine.

Thus, the air in the open sea contains thirteen times more iodine as compared to the air of a city.

The iodine is thrown off into the air by the sea weeds. They come to the surface of the water and project into the air their spores and other parts of their structure.

The iodine of the air is thus fixed by these organisms, floating in the atmosphere.

The large quantity of iodine present in the sea air is largely responsible for the invigorating qualities of the sea climate.

That is because iodine not only stimulates the normal functions of the body, but because it is not favorable to the growth of germs.

FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

Retail Christmas trade [illegible] expectations.

Wall Street enjoys [illegible].

Dividend disbursements make many stockholders happy.

Never before were so many bonuses and gifts made to employes.

The eve of the holiday [illegible] [illegible] advances in [illegible] cotton prices.

[illegible] Lewis of the United Mine Workers [illegible] his army of followers [illegible]. This [illegible] to dictate terms.

Usually Wall Street has [illegible] definite ideas [illegible] a year as to how securities are headed. On this occasion there is lacking unanimity of [illegible].

Some financiers think that the expansion in bank loans will mean further stiffening of money rates and that this, in turn, will operate against any further substantial rise in stocks, especially those of the speculative variety.

Others calculate that general business will be so satisfactory that cheerfulness will continue to reign in most if not all divisions of the market.

Regarding the business [illegible] hardly any difference of opinion is expressed. The general, almost unanimous, expectation is that industry and trade will do still better after the turn of the year. Nearly everybody looks for at least six months of prosperity.

Were the financial and industrial and business and labor world each sure that nothing would check the enjoyment of greater and still greater prosperity, the sounding of warning words would be necessary.

As it is, all responsible interests appear to be acting sanely. Confidence is the keynote, but there is a salutary absence, at least outside of stock market speculative circles, of reckless action.

* * *

Thus the year is ending in America with satisfactory conditions both material and mental.

NEW CAN STOCK TO HELP FREE TRAPPED BEARS

By FRANK H. MELOON

Financial Editor.

I understand that the new American [illegible] now [illegible] New York [illegible] [illegible] is likely to [illegible] [illegible] for the [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] "Four [illegible]" [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

* * *

The story is that the new Can [illegible] [illegible] in the [illegible] the old [illegible]. If this is [illegible] it might [illegible] that some of [illegible] have [illegible] for cover too [illegible], though in the end it would be as if the old Can stock remained on the board indefinitely.

* * *

With the death in Rockville, Ct., of Alvah N. Belding, almost simultaneously with announcement [illegible] [illegible] for a merger [illegible] Belding Bros. [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] chapter [illegible] New England pioneer industrial [illegible].

* * *

Alvah Belding was the last of the [illegible] brothers, Hiram, Milo and David [illegible], who, a decade before the Civil War, with [illegible] capital of $25 entered on the business of [illegible] silk. They came from the little town of Ashfield in Franklin county, Massachusetts, the same Ashfield that produced Marshall Field and William C. Whitney, and, like their more famous fellow-townsmen, what they lacked in cash they made up for in sheer Yankee brains, Yankee industry and Yankee ingenuity.

* * *

In 1863 Belding Bros. began the manufacture of spool silk and silk thread on one floor of a factory building in Rockville. Soon they occupied the entire building and enlarged it. In 1873 they erected a large mill in Northampton, Mass. Followed in the course of years mills in Belding, Mich., and Petaluma, Cal. In June, 1925, when the corporation was purchased by a banking group, the original $25 borrowed capital had grown into tangible assets in excess of $15,000,000.

* * *

Here's some more prosperity. T. [illegible] Joyce, assistant to President James H. Hustis, tells me the Boston & Maine Railroad in November earned a net income, after fixed charges, of $571,428.14, which compares with $112,173.62 in November, 1924. Operating revenues were $227,[illegible] more than the same month last year, largely as a result of an increase of $116,243.47 in freight revenues, although there was again a loss in passenger revenues of $1[illegible]. The reduction in operating expenses continued, and with a saving of $262,251.57 as compared with last November the ratio between operating revenues and expenses was reduced from 81.10 per cent. to 74.29 per cent.

New Haven Railroad reports for November a surplus after charges of $860,073, comparing with a surplus of $911,533 in October, a surplus of $612,963 in November, 1924, and a surplus of $372,106 in November, 1923. For the 11 months ended Nov. 30 there was a surplus after charges of $6,682,248, comparing with $2,482,764 in corresponding period of 1924, and a deficit of $3,324,354 in the first 11 months of 1923.

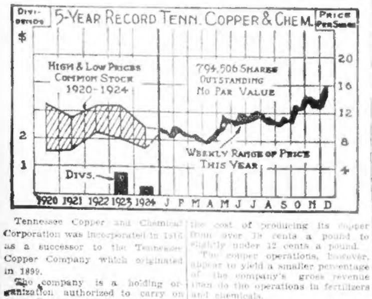
Following were elected officers in First National Stores, Inc.: Augustus F. Goodwin, chairman of the board; Michael O'Keeffe, president; James C. Dunne, first vice-president; Martin Carey, second vice-president; James J. Curry, third vice-president; Arthur O'Keeffe, clerk and Charles F. Adams, treasurer. The foregoing and the following will constitute the directorate: Charles E. Merrill, Charles H. Farnsworth, Ralph F. Burnham and Robert F. Irwin.



Tennessee Copper and Chemical Corporation was incorporated in 1916 as a successor to the Tennessee Copper Company which originated in 1899.

The company is a holding organization authorized to carry on generally the business of mining, smelting, refining, milling and otherwise dealing in and disposing of all kinds of ores, minerals and metals.

It also has other interests. The mines owned are all located in Polk County, Tennessee. Among its other achievements, the company has been able in four years to reduce the cost of producing its copper from over 19 cents a pound to slightly under 12 cents a pound.

The copper operations, however, appear to yield a smaller percentage of the company's gross revenue than do the operations in fertilizers and chemicals.

The company has been able to increase its net income in every year since 1919 with the exception of 1924 in spite of irregularity in gross sales.

Dividend payments, however, have not been regular since 1918, although they were fairly consistent before that time. The present rate is $1 a share per year.

Lee, Higginson & Co. Opens New Quarters

Banking House Now at No. 70 Federal Street, With More Extensive Facilities

Change From State Street Is Significant of Expansion of Financial District

John Clark Lee, one of the founders.

George Higginson, the other original partner.

[illegible] State street, where it has been part for more than seventy-[illegible] years in making financial history of the world at large, Lee, Higginson & Co. today moved its headquarters to the former home of the First National Bank of Boston with main entrance at No. 70 Federal street.

The new headquarters consists of a [illegible] banking house, occupying [illegible] that fronts on Federal, Franklin and Congress streets, and adjoining it is a ten-story office building at No. 50 Federal street, which, like the bank building itself, has entrances from both Federal and Congress streets.

The move of Lee, Higginson & Co. to the newly chosen place of business indicates clearly the stretching out of Boston's financial district, to adjust itself to the needs of the constantly growing volume of banking and investment business that is transacted here.

Lee, Higginson & Co. has occupied the offices which it has just vacated, in the Union Building at No. 44 State street, since 1852. At that time the firm moved from No. 47 State street, where it had established itself at the time of its organization in 1848. The Union Building is one of the oldest structures now standing in Boston that is still used for business purposes. It is close to the spot associated with the Boston Massacre and is within a stone's throw of the old State House. It was built in 1824.

LARGE BANKING ROOM.

In moving into its new quarters, the concern gains one of the largest banking rooms in the city, and one of the most distinguished from an architectural viewpoint because of its proportions and the simplicity and dignity of its ornamentation.

The main entrance to the new building is at 70 Federal street, where after ascending a few steps one enters the main banking room. This room is 80 feet long, 70 feet in width, and with a total height of 45 feet, gives the benefit of the full four stories of the building.

On the Franklin street side of this main room, on the right as one enters from the main entrance on Federal street, is located the bond sales department, extending the full length of the room, with three parallel rows of desks for the large staff of salesmen, affording to the public ample facilities for the convenient transaction of investment security business.

The desks of the partners and conference rooms are at the Congress street end of the main room. On the eastern side of the room, opposite the bond department, and to the left as one comes in from the main entrance on Federal street, is the foreign department. In the balcony directly over the foreign department is the cable department and other clerical services.

On the floor below the main banking room is the stock department, which is entered by descending a few steps from the main entrance at No. 70 Federal street and to which there is also an entrance from the stairway in the centre of the main banking room.

SPECIAL VAULT FACILITIES.

At the left of the main entrance at Federal street, descending a few steps, one enters the modern vault of the Lee, Higginson Safe Deposit Company. The vault has two entrances, protected by massive double doors. The usual private boxes of various sizes are provided, and also large safes for business corporations and financial institutions.

There are coupon rooms directly within the vault and additional coupon rooms adjacent to the entrance of the vault.

The cages of the cashier and the other cages in which securities are handled are on the first floor of the office building, which is connected with the main banking room by a large passageway between the foreign department and the partners offices at the Congress street end of the building. The cages are also reached by direct entrance from the first floor of the office building from Congress street and through the main entrance to the office building at 50 Federal street.

The statistical department, which is one of the most complete of any financial institution in the country, occupies the entire third floor of the office building. The various clerical departments have quarters on the first and second floors of the office building and on the second, third and fourth floors of the bank building. There are also comfortably fitted rest rooms for both men and women employes.

STANDS ON HISTORIC SPOT.

The ground on which the newly fitted home of the firm stands is one of the historic sites of Boston. From 1744 to 1872 the famous Federal Street Meeting House, the name of which was itself a patriotic monument of the early beginnings of national greatness, stood here, and was a landmark of Old Boston, its spire being one of the first recognizable signs of the home town that the old-time clipper ships picked up as they stood up Boston Harbor to Long Wharf on their return voyages in the early decades of the nineteenth century.

Lee, Higginson & Co. is a partnership carrying on a private banking business, specializing in the purchase and sale of listed and unlisted securities in the various financial markets and in the conduct of a large foreign business. Boston is the home office and of the 15 present members of the firm seven are residents of Greater Boston. The firm has an office in Chicago, established in 1905, and one in New York, established in 1906. It has been a member of the Boston Stock Exchange since 1848, of that in New York since 1888, and of that in Chicago since 1893.

The present members of the firm in Boston are: James Jackson Storrow, George Cabot Lee, N. Penrose Hallowell, Francis Lee Higginson, James Nowell, Charles E. Cotting, Edward Holyoke Osgood.

The partners in New York are: Frederic Winthrop Allen, Jerome D. Greene, Donald Durant, Edward N. Jesup.

The partners in Chicago are: Charles H. Schweppe, Barrett Wendell, Jr., William McCormick Blair.

Sir W. Guy Granet, of London is also a partner of Lee, Higginson & Co.

ALL OVER THE WORLD.

The house has an important European business, which is conducted through the affiliated firm of Higginson & Co. of London, organized in 1906. The resident members of the firm of Higginson & Co. are Sir W. Guy Granet, G. B. E.; Lieutenant-Colonel the Honorable George Akers-Douglas, Robert Grant, Jr., Charles L. Dalzel, T. H. McKittrick, Jr.

The concern has offices and representatives in all important cities of the United States, and more than 2,000 correspondents throughout the world. As a house of issue it sells annually investment bonds to the value of several hundred million dollars, and handles a large volume of commission business on the New York and Boston Stock Exchanges.

It also finances for its customers the shipment of exports and imports amounting to many millions of dollars, more especially the imports of raw materials for New England factories such as wool, hides and skins, rubber, Egyptian cotton, hemp, wood pulp, silk and also such domestic necessaries as coffee, sugar and tea.

The firm was established May 1, 1848, by John Clarke Lee of Salem and George Higginson of Boston, who formed a partnership under the name of Lee & Higginson with offices at 47 State street. The first announcement of the partnership told the public that Lee & Higginson offered their services "in the purchase and sale of stocks, notes and exchange." The signature of George Higginson appears in the constitution of the Boston Stock Exchange on May 1, 1848.

TWO NEW PARTNERS JOIN.

In April, 1853, the name of the firm was changed to Lee, Higginson & Co. and two new partners were admitted—Henry Lee, brother-in-law of George Higginson, and George Cabot Lee, son of John Clarke Lee. At the same time the offices were moved from 47 State street to the Union building at 44 State street.

Maj. Henry L. Higginson was admitted to the firm in 1868, and the following year his brother, Francis L. Higginson, became a partner. Maj. Higginson continued to be a member of the firm for 51 years until his death in 1919, and for many years was esteemed one of the leading citizens of Massachusetts.

Among the former members of the firm who played an important part during this latter period were: James Jackson, partner from 1855 until his death in 1900; Gardner M. Lane, a member from 1892 until his death in 1914; George L. Peabody, a member of the firm from 1898 to 1910, and Sir Hugh G. Levick, a partner from 1906 until he retired in 1919 to become one of the two British members of the reparations commission in Paris. James J. Storrow became a member of the firm in 1900, and since the death of Maj. Higginson in 1919, he has been the senior partner.

$25,000,000 LOANS ARE CALLED IN WALL STREET

Shortly after the opening of the market, New York banks called approximately $25,000,000 in call loans. This came as a surprise to the street as Saturday's Clearing House statement showed a surplus reserve of $25,351,150 in excess of legal requirements, with loans and investments down $9,697,000 Wednesday.

Wednesday's Federal Reserve statement showed banks had an increase of $13,780,000 in their reserve deposit at the central bank. Calling came chiefly from out-of-town banks. Bankers do not look for a higher rate than the current 6 per cent.

ERROL COMEDY AT OLYMPIA

Leon Errol, he of the collapsible knees and funny feet, has again invaded the movies, this time as Captain Dixey Bull, the pseudo bold buccaneer of the Spanish Main in Holman Day's "Clothes Make the Pirate," now showing at the Olympia.

Errol on the stage, or Errol on the screen, the result is the same: comedy roars its way down the aisles and the audience is rendered weak and helpless from laughter. But, with the screen's superior facilities for manipulation, his pantomimic gifts have a perfect display and he is destined for a spot in the films all his own—they were "poured out" for him.

The story has coherency and a well planned dramatic suspense. The battle scene was as effective as were those in "The Sea Hawk," and the humor ran its own sweet way with all the good old Errol antics and some new ones added for the occasion. His strenuous duties as a pirate chief induced a great deal of alcoholic illumination and resulting "jag," with the subsequent comic disrobing and retiring to "sleep it off."

Although the show is all Errol's, it is made doubly effective with the help of a fine supporting cast, which includes Dorothy Gish, Tully Marshall, Edna Murphy and Nita Naldi.

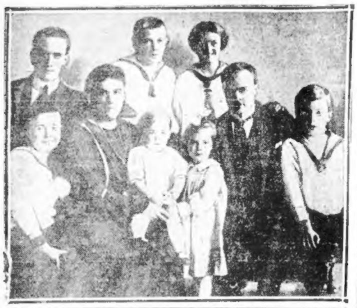
Germany's Richest Woman Has Seven Children

An Important Proof That Germany Will NOT Go Down



This is Frau Bertha Krupp von Bohlen, owner of the gigantic Krupp Works, richest woman in Germany. She sets a good example to other rich women. Birth control evidently doesn't interest her.

In old days of Kaisers and Crown Princes leading Germany close to destruction, the great Krupp Works were devoted largely to manufacturing cannon and other weapons for war.

The Kaiser, interested in the gun factory, is said to have selected young Von Bohlen, the young man in this picture, as a husband for Bertha Krupp.

If that be true, he made a good selection, for Von Bohlen has a well-developed forehead and a strong face.

Frau Bertha Krupp von Bohlen, as you can see in this picture, is a typical German mother. Theodore Roosevelt would have liked to congratulate her; race suicide is not in her line.

This picture, showing the richest German woman with her seven children, means more to the German nation than hundreds of millions in gold, more than one hundred factories as big as the Krupp factory would mean.

This picture means that THE WOMEN OF GERMANY are willing to do their duty.

They love children, want children, and HAVE CHILDREN.

A nation with such women will survive any disaster.

The fighting rulers of olden times understood that well. That is why when a nation was conquered the conquerors took away the women, killing the men, but reserving the women. They knew that the strength of the race is in the mothers.

In modern war, sad as it is, public opinion does not allow women to be stolen, or children knocked on the head, as was done in ancient times.

That makes war less deadly, in SPITE of poison gas and machine guns.

The Young Fellow of Fifty

London Worries About Him; Whitinsville, Mass., U. S. A., Thinks the Child Labor Laws Were Written for Him

Admiral Sims and Senator Reed Smoot are among the Americans of note who have answered the question propounded by an evening newspaper of London, "How many hours daily can a man of 50 work?"

First pointing out that naval officers do not usually do work of a set kind, Admiral Sims, 67, gives it as his opinion that "more can be accomplished during a certain number of days by working eight hours a day than by working fifteen."

The Senator from Utah, who is 64, sees no reason why he cannot safely work "at least 14 hours out of the 24 for years to come."

We call attention to the discussion solely for the purpose of entertaining some of our friends in the Blackstone Valley, and more particularly in that picturesque village where Henry Ward Beecher once taught school.

They hold, in Whitinsville, that the man of 50 is still a cub, a whipper-snapper, a mere seedling. Of the more than 3,000 men who make cotton mill machinery in the great plant of the Whitin Machine Works an even two dozen have completed FIFTY YEARS OF SERVICE with the same organization.

If the London editor wants the views of an authority, on the question of what is best for boys of 50, he will inquire of Frank A. Cross of Whitinsville, who went into the "works" 12 months after the close of the Civil War. Frank is serving his FIFTY-FIFTH year as a town constable. Elderly? Some might so consider him, but he is only 81—middle aged, as they reckon it in Whitinsville—and only recently returned home from a hunting trip in Maine.

The older folk of Whitinsville, learning of this London newspaper discussion, will be more certain than ever before that editors sometimes are hard pressed to "find things to fill the paper with."

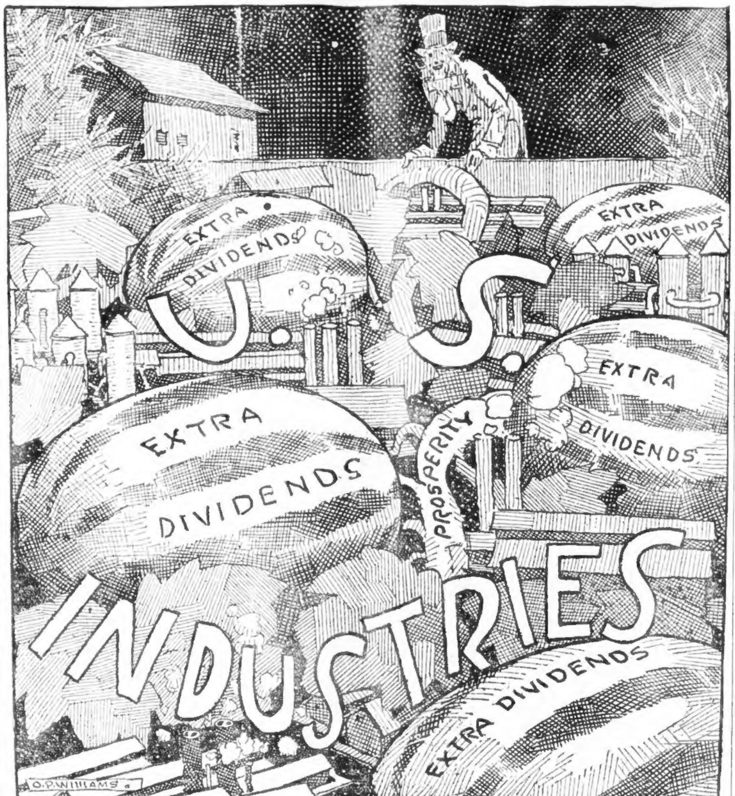
Profitable Airplanes

Every One Can Pay for Itself

Every airplane in the United States can be made to pay its way. This is shown by the reports of the Bureau of Entomology. Airplanes have sprayed with chemicals 50,000 acres of cotton lands in war against the boll weevil. Airplanes are needed to attack and destroy the Japanese beetle, European corn borer and Mexican bean beetle.

Carrying mails, passengers, expensive express matter, including ripe fruits; fighting plant diseases and forest fires, and planting seeds of trees on barren regions—thousands of flying machines could and ought to be used by this Government, and made self-supporting.

His Melon Patch



WHAT pessimist said watermelons grew only in the Summertime?

This marvelous civilization of ours succeeded in turning night into day with the electric light. Now it is succeeding in turning Winter into the harvest time through the magic of finance.

If you get a share of the many melons that are being cut in and around Wall and State streets these Christmas and New Year days don't let a slick gentleman take it away from you in any get-rich-quick scheme. These gentlemen will follow bonus checks as a hound dog follows a rabbit. There is no better place to put a bonus check than back into the business that produced it, or another one you know just as well. Otherwise put it in a savings bank.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

ONE New York florist has already sold ten thousand dollars worth of mistletoe. Couples are buying it ahead of time and trying it out in advance.

THEY'RE doing their Christmas kissing early.

A SMALL twig of this chandelier fruit costs a dollar and a half but it's worth it.

ROSES and Lilies of the Valley are prettier but mistletoe entitles you to more privileges.

OLD maids are squandering fortunes on these spooning berries.

ONE middle-aged spinster bought a fifteen dollar branch and spent the whole day in the lobby of a bachelor hotel.

BUT none of the bachelors were home. They bought a lot of mistletoe themselves and went over to the Y. W. C. A.

A CHICAGO man bought a twig the other day and kissed the young lady clerk who sold it to him. He said he wanted to see if it worked.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By Elsie Robinson

WE'RE doing big things with questionnaires these days.

This is going to be a questionnaire.

It will do big work for you, if you will let it.

If you will sit down tonight and answer these questions honestly to yourself, you will arise tomorrow a stronger, wiser, freer person.

But before you start you must realize it won't be an easy thing to do. You are about to decide why you think certain things. That's an intensely difficult job. If you're honest you'll probably find that you think them because your folks thought them—or because it's safe to think them—or because it makes you feel important to think them—or simply because it has never occurred to you to think any other way.

QUESTIONNAIRE

Why do you think the present feminine styles are immodest? Why do you attack the length of a skirt rather than the quality of a style?

Why do you believe that mothers shouldn't be blamed for their shortcomings? Should not every worker be held responsible for the quality of his service and his output? Then why not mothers?

Why do you believe this country is a democracy?

Why do you think that Americans are better than other people?

Why would you like to see churches abolished? What creed have you formulated to replace the church that would make men nobler? What are the fruits of your creed in your own life? If your creed hasn't eliminated your own cussedness, why do you believe that it would eliminate the cussedness of other humans?

Why do you feel so strongly against women smoking? What logical connection have you made between morals and a piece of rice paper filled with tobacco?

Why do you disbelieve in war? What are you going to do with the bile and bluster in humans if you don't let them fight?

Why do you believe in yourself?

N. B.—None of these questions are to be considered indicative of my own personal viewpoint. I have no personal viewpoint. I change it every day.

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By Helen Rowland

LOVE is a prism, through which lovers look at life and see everything in bright and beautiful colors.

* * *

About the only thing you can't get in a drugstore, these days, is a marriage license, or a divorce.

Helen Rowland

Trying to make some husbands look ornamental in evening clothes is about as successful as dolling a bath-towel up with an embroidered monogram. The word "useful" is written all over them.

Nothing makes a man feel so righteous and irreproachable as a fresh shave and a hair-cut; and nothing makes a woman feel nearer to heaven than a brand new corselet and a fresh marcel.

* * *

It isn't beauty or brains or clothes that make a particular woman fascinating; it is just a sort of magnetic current that seems to run around her and set her eyes a-twinkling and every man's heart a-tingling.

Famous Fortunes

—By BARBARA BAYNE—

IN America's industrial realm no figure looms more conspicuously than that of Charles Michael Schwab, who, starting as a lowly "dollar-a-day stake driver," became a "Million-Dollar Salary Man" within the brief period of fifteen years.

Schwab became internationally famous as the only man who ever tore up a $1,000,000 a year salary contract. But when the United States Steel Corporation was formed, that contract was the only obstacle to his acceptance of the presidency and the ownership of $28,000,000 (par value) of its capital stock. So, like every other obstacle he had encountered in his meteoric career, he hurdled it.

The Schwab family moved from Williamsburg, Pa., where Charles Michael was born Feb. 18, 1862, to Loretto, Pa. Charles spent two years at St. Francis College, and at sixteen was driving his father's stage. Then he went to work in a grocery store at Braddock, where the Edgar Thomson Works, owned by Phipps and Carnegie, were located. Captain Jones, superintendent of the steel mills, gave "Charlie" his first job as a stake driver. Six years later Charlie was superintendent.

The brilliantly conceived Homestead Steel Plant was Schwab's next step. He became its superintendent also, with about 8,000 men of the two plants under him.

ON "ATTENTIONS AND INTTENTIONS"

SOME MEN pay a girl
A LOT OF ATTENTION
Without any INTENTION
Of MARRYING her.
OTHERS, yet don't Know HOW TO PAY
The little ATTENTIONS
That PLEASE.
SOME men have BAD
INTENTIONS right
From the START; these are ALWAYS PLEASING,
(The MEN, I mean.)
For like well-drilled SOLDIERS they are always
AT ATTENTION, for
MANY of them have seen
Much ACTIVE SERVICE;
These will also be Found at a TENSION
And ready to run
At a moment's notice.
But, after all, WHY
WORRY? The Modern girl
DEMANDS ATTENTION,
FOR WHAT DO A MAN'S INTENTIONS matter if
SHE hasn't ANY?

THE DEMOCRACY OF CHARITY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ONE of the most democratic things in the world is charity.

The intellect is mainly aristocratic; the heart is essentially democratic.

The mind tends to perceive human weaknesses; the heart to see human needs.

The mind puts individuals into class, categories and groups. It makes obeisance before those who are superior or distinguished.

The heart, answering the call of need, knows neither caste nor man-made boundary lines.

Christmas holiday time—the season of the heart, the occasion of the universal charity—is the supreme democratic celebration of the year.

True democracy begins with seeing from the angle of the other man. It is essentially a willingness that others should enjoy the same liberties and opportunities that you desire.

One side of the democratic attitude toward government is that no man desires to be a slave. The equally important reverse side is that no man desires to be king.

To have a true democracy the citizens must be able to get out of themselves.

The Christmas season is the spiritual defense test of the democratic idea.

It is the time when people practice getting out of themselves and thinking of others.

Both democracy and charity wed the everyday to the ideal.

Democracy unites the material and age-old problems of government with the freeing ideal of individual participation.

Charity brings the abstract and idealistic doctrine of brotherhood, love and kindness to the giving of everyday necessities to those who need them.

The Christmas season is a more democratic celebration than even our observance of the Fourth of July. For then we celebrate the democracy of a particular people, while at the Christmas season we celebrate the feeling of the universal brotherhood of man, which is the essence of true democracy.

MAGNETIC NEEDLE HAS ITS SECRETS

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Kindly enlighten me as to the following:

"Does the magnetic needle reverse and point toward the South Pole upon crossing the Equator?

"What does the expression mean, 'boxing the compass'? H., Little Falls, N. Y."

EACH end of the magnetic needle is itself a "pole," characterized by magnetism opposite to that of the other end.

The North-pointing end is the North Pole of the magnet; the South-pointing end is the South Pole of the magnet. If you break a bar magnet, or magnetic needle, in two, instantly each half becomes a complete magnet, with two opposite poles, like the original bar, or needle.

Then if you divide the pieces, the same thing occurs again. A magnet cannot exist without having two opposite poles, one of which, if the magnet is free to move, will turn toward the North and the other toward the South. And the two poles retain their respective characters, wherever they may be on the earth.

Crossing the Equator

Thus, on crossing the equator (magnetic equator) from the Northern into the Southern Hemisphere, or vice versa, no reversal of the pointing of the needle occurs; the north end, or pole, still points northward, and the south southward.

The earth itself is a great magnet, probably owing to the existence of enormous quantities of iron in its core, and, like the needle, it, too, possesses two opposite poles of magnetism—one north, the other south.

Lines of magnetic force connect the magnetic poles of the earth, as similar lines also connect the poles of every magnet, and at every point on the globe the magnetic needle places itself parallel to the great force lines, or magnetic meridians, of the earth.

That the earth's magnetism governs that of all small magnets on its surface is shown by the fact that wherever there is any variation in the direction of the magnetic meridians the same variation occurs in the direction of pointing of the magnetic needle.

Indeed, the proof of the variation in direction of the magnetic meridians is furnished by the corresponding variation in the direction of the needle.

The only way to cause a needle to reverse its position, so that the north end moy point south, and the south end north, is by bringing it near a mass of iron or steel, the attraction between which and the end of the naadle nearest to it is sufficient to overcome the tendency of the needle to lie parallel to the magnetic meridian.

There is another way, however, but you would have to venture up into the cold Arctic regions to try it. The north magnetic pole of the earth is far south of the geographic pole; i. e., the pole of the exis on which the earth rotates; in fact, it is in the northeastern corner of North America, within about 20 degrees of the north pole, and if you should carry your compass north of it you would find the north end of the needle pointing south, in the direction of the north magnetic pole, which would then lie south of you.

And if you took the needle to the magnetic pole itself you would find its north end pointing down into the earth, which shows that the mysterious force that governs its movements has its northern focus in the interior of the globe, and not on its surface.

Similar phenomena would manifest themselves if you carried the needle south of the south magnetic pole, which is near the northern border of the great Antarctic continent. There the south end of the needle points downward.

A Few Facts.

These are but a few of the main facts about the earth's magnetism and the magnetic needle.

"Boxing the compass" is a sailor's expression for naming, in their order, the principal points arranged around the circumference of the mariner's compass to indicate direction with reference to the meridian, or to the east and west line.

These points run as follows: North, North-by-East; North-North-East; North-East-by-North; North-East; North-East-by-East; East-North-East; East-by-North; East. Keeping on, repeat this series, with proper change of names, for each of the three other quadrants, passing from East through South and West, back to North. When you can do that glibly and rapidly, without a stumble, you will have boxed the compass like a sailor.

ARE YOU THE CAUSE OF YOUR TROUBLES AT HOME?

Sometimes you wonder if other couples have as serious disagreements as occur in your home.

You see other people who appear so happy that you cannot think it possible that they should have any great differences.

You picture these homes as always serene, smooth sailing.

When you draw a comparison between what happens in your home and what you imagine goes on in their homes you begin to blame some one for the trouble, but do you often think of yourself as the cause?

You admit that you have a temper, a bit quick at times when you become arrogant, but you do not paint yourself in as unfavorable light as you would if you were truly honest.

Possibly there are some homes where there is no quarreling, but, if so, those homes are exceptions.

Two normal persons cannot get along, year after year, without having differences of opinion which they support with more or less vigor; but if a spirit of fairness prevails there would be fewer quarrels.

To quarrel is petty. To have differences is natural. Don't quarrel. Be fair.
